Ohio Congressmen Disagree On How Buckeye Farmers View Parity Setup

WASHINGTON (P)—Michael J. Kirwan is an Ohio Democrat who says the farmers are going to help push his party into power in the House this fall.

In Kirwan's view, this week's argument over a new farm program proposed by the Administration was a repeat performance of 1948.

That, it will be recalled, was the year Harry S. Truman, with a big boost from farmers, was elected over Thomas Dewey.

As chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, Kirwan, of Youngstown, took a special interest in the farm bill the House took up this week.

The Administration wanted flexible price supports. The Democrats, at least many of them, wanted them held high, as they are. Yesterday the House approved a sliding scale of price supports ranging from 82½ to 90 per cent of parity.

While debate on the measure droned inside the House chambers, Kirwan perched himself on a window seat just outside.

"Do you know what decided the 1948 election?" he asked an interviewer. "It was a Labor Day speech by Harold Stassen in Cadillac Square in Detroit."

"He said the Republicans were going to cut farm parity. That was the day Harry Truman was elected. We Democrats got a 61 majority in the House that fall. We picked up six House seats in Ohio, and we'll repeat again this year."

Ohio Republican congressmen, of course, look at the farm program from an entirely different angle.

For example, Frank Bow, Canton Republican, has lots of farm constituents, including those in lush Wayne County, where farmers are reputedly ranked among the most prosperous in the nation.

From his polls, mail and conversations with farmers, Bow said he is convinced they want something more in line with the Administration's flexible plan.

And Kirwan's neighbor congressman to the west, Republican Oliver P. Bolton, got up and told the House that farm income was dwindling in spite of the present high support arrangement.

This is happening, said Bolton, because there is insufficient storage space for crops the farmers borrow money on. As a result, they have to sell them below the support price, he said.

What farmers in his district want, he said, is fewer government directives over what farmers may or may not plant. He said this will only be made possible by relaxing support prices as the Administration wants to do.

Wheat Heading To Market; Storage Problems Studied

COLUMBUS (P)—Wheat is shaping up to become a big topic among Ohio farmers with full scale harvesting about to get underway.

Some wheat already is beginning to move to storage spots and some concern is being raised over adequate storage facilities. Storage was a tough problem last year and the same trouble is expected again as grain heads toward the elevators.

The official government wheat forecast on June 1 was 44,700,000 bushels for Ohio compared to 69,136,000 bushels last year and the 10-year average yield of 47,616,000 bushels.

B. U. Kienholz, head of the Federal Bureau of Agriculture Economics here, pointed out this year's crop probably will be a better than average yield, with a lower total probable because of less acreage planted this year.

Spokesman for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office here said storage will be harder to find than in 1953, when the record 69,136,000 bushel wheat crop jammed elevators everywhere.

FIRST FRANKLIN County report of wheat placed in storage came from the Winchester Milling Co., Canal Winchester. The firm took in 200 bushels from one farmer.

Wheat movements have begun around Circleville and it was expected harvesting in most areas would begin on a large scale next week.

Farmers who want to sell their wheat immediately at the open market price of about $1.70 a bushel can expect little difficulty in disposing of it. But those who want to take advantage of a government-guaranteed top price of $32.24 for

No. 1 wheat are expected to run into trouble.

Elevators in the Columbus area which act as primary storage points can take in many thousands of bushels. But big storage centers, such as the ones in Toledo and Cincinnati, were reported in many cases still holding last year's crop.

It is these storage centers where the grain must be sent after temporary local storage.

Farmers crowded into the ASC offices here today, seeking marketing quota cards. They get the cards if they have stayed within the government established production allotment.

The farmers have their choice of three moves. They can sell the wheat on the open market get a government loan on it, or obtain a purchase agreement on it from the government.

Deadline for payment of the loan and disposal of the wheat by the government under the purchase agreement is April 30, 1955.

Farmers also can get storage facility loans enabling them to construct wheat storage bins on their own farms. They have four years to pay off these loans.

Hamilton Named As Census Center

WASHINGTON (P)—The Census Bureau has selected Hamilton for its Southwest Ohio district headquarters in the nationwide farm census this fall.

This was announced yesterday by Rep. Schenck (R-Ohio). He said the bureau had informed him the Southwest Ohio district would cover the following congressional districts: First, second, third, lower part of the fourth, the seventh and 12th.

Ike-Backers Claim Pair Of Victories

Administration Forces See Wins In Votes On Tax Bill, Farm Plan

WASHINGTON (P)—Supporters of the Eisenhower Administration are claiming two victories as the result of House and Senate votes yesterday. One concerns the new tax bill, the other over the controversial farm price program.

Senate supporters of the Eisenhower flexible farm price support program took heart after a victory in the House.

"We are well on the way to completing a farm bill that the President can accept," said Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

At the same time, Senate advocates of continued high, rigid price props for basic field crops appeared taken back by House approval yesterday of farm legislation embodying the flexible principle, although in a narrower range than that sought by the administration.

SEN. YOUNG (R-ND), a leader of the high support faction in the Senate conceded he was "greatly surprised" by the 58-vote margin by which the House approved, 228-170, a sliding scale of price floors ranging from 82½ to 90 per cent of parity for five basic crops—wheat, corn, cotton, rice and peanuts.

House acceptance of the flexible support principle was regarded as an administration victory, even though the range approved was only half the 75-90 per cent sought

VFW Seeking Tighter Law On Schools

COLUMBUS (P)—The annual encampment of Ohio Veterans of Foreign Wars will work for adoption of a law requiring certain "basically fundamental and traditionally sound courses of instruction" in all Ohio public schools.

A resolution calling for such a state law was adopted yesterday by the group here.

State commander Joseph H. Rice of Crestline said the purpose of the resolution was to make compulsory the teaching of American history in Ohio schools. His resolution referred to courses required by law prior to 1943, which he said should be required again.

In other resolutions the Ohio encampment proposed steps be taken to effect minimum pensions for war widows and bonuses for Korean vets, urged support of World Neighbors, Inc., and urged an extension of time for collection of bonuses by World War II veterans.

The encampment heard State Sen. Lowell Fess say he is seeking an investigation of alleged Communist infiltration at Antioch College in his hometown, Yellow Springs.

Fess said he will not rest "until every Communist, Socialist, Red, Pink and Leftist is driven out of Antioch College, Yellow Springs and the Dayton area."

Ninth Child Born By Caesarean

CHICAGO (P)—A ninth child by Caesarean section was born yesterday to Mrs. Peter Thommes, 38.

The baby, a girl, weighed six pounds, four ounces. Mrs. Thommes' first child, Peter Jr., is now 17. The children's father, 44, is a printer.

Years ago three births by Caesarean section was considered the limit without endangering the mother's health. Improved care and techniques have removed the hazard. On April 23, Mrs. Joseph L. McAndrew of Providence, R.I. bore her eleventh Caesarean child.

5 New Graduates Get Scholarships

Four girls and one boy from Pickaway County, all new graduates from high schools in the area, have been named to receive scholarships for elementary teaching. The scholarships, worth $500 a year, were from the Ohio Scholarship Fund.

The names are: June G. Speakman, of New Holland Route 2; Barbara Lucille Schumm, of 114 S. Washington St.; Phyllis Elaine Maxson, of Kingston Route 1; Phyllis Ellen Clifton, of 307 S. Court St., and Robert Allen Cline, of 81 Long St., Ashville.

The five were among 465 applicants approved throughout the state. Each scholarship may be used to prepare for elementary teaching in any one of the 24 Ohio colleges offering an approved two-year program of this sort.

To be eligible for one of these scholarships, an applicant was required to submit two letters of recommendation, evidence of having graduated in the upper half of the class and be nominated for the scholarship by a county committee. Also there had to be a need for help financially.

U.S. Shows Grave Concern Over French Withdrawals

WASHINGTON (P)—The United States has instructed its diplomats in Paris, Geneva and Saigon to express grave concern to French and Vietnamese government leaders over the abandonment to Communist forces of anti-Communist populations in the Red River Delta of Indochina.

The action was taken, officials said, on humanitarian grounds. A dispatch from Singapore yesterday reported that French troops withdrawal south of Hanoi had put an additional four million Vietnamese under Red rule.

The French command in Hanoi announced their troops have evacuated five fortified cities and 2,000 square miles of rich, heavily populated rice land in the southern part of the Red River Delta.

The State Department spokesman said Thursday that the United States had not been informed by the French government of the withdrawal operation. Yesterday the spokesman, Press Officer Henry Suydam, disclosed that the United States was asking Paris for information about Indochina.

Here's A Cat That's Been Around

MAGNOLIA, Ark. (P)—Two men who had been following a truck finally flagged it down at a busy intersection here.

The driver joined them in probing behind his rear dual wheels.

Out came a dizzy little kitten that had been lodged between the tires.

HOWEVER, French diplomats here said information about the program, the scholarship in reality is but a loan which must be repaid. If the applicant completes the two-year college program and teaches for two years the loan is then considered cancelled.

If, however, these requirements are not met except for death or total disability, the applicant must repay the loan with interest.

Those scholarships given this year are actually for one year only under the fiscal setup. They are renewable for an additional year. There is little doubt, though, that additional money will be allocated.

Circleville Set For Quiet Rest Over Weekend

Circleville will take it easy and quiet—and try to keep cool—over the big Fourth of July weekend.

Virtually all business will be suspended through Monday, except for lines of trade that especially cater to the tourist or holiday customers. City, county, state and federal offices will go on their usual holiday schedules in observance of Independence Day.

Many city residents will join the rest of the county in turning the spotlight on Ashville, where a three-day celebration of The Fourth opens at 2 p. m. Saturday.

The Circleville Herald will not be published Monday, the day set aside for the observance in this district.

HINTING AT one of the less cheering features of the weekend, Circleville's municipal court will be open Monday morning to hear some of the "holiday cases."

Vast majority of these are expected to involve traffic violations, as all district law enforcement agencies team up to hold down the highway death toll.

Circleville city police said a marked increase in traffic through the city became apparent about noon Friday. Since that time the local traffic flow has gained slowly but steadily, headed for the big weekend peak which may not come until late Monday.

Law enforcement units, along with other emergency services, will be among those remaining on normal schedules.

But Many Black Marks Coming As Death Prowls Nation's Highways

By The Associated Press
Throughout the nation this weekend, in big cities and small towns, Fourth of July celebrations will mostly follow the old-fashioned formula of a parade, fireworks and patriotic speeches.

But behind the speeches will lie the very modern problems of an uneasy atomic age, more awesome than any that could be imagined when American independence was declared 178 years ago.

And the holiday will not avoid its black marks—a accidental deaths, mostly on the jam-packed highways.

Millions of motorists already were on the roads today, but the traffic death toll was light in the first few hours of the extended weekend.

However, the National Safety Council has estimated there will be 430 persons killed in motor mishaps the 78-hour period from 6 p. m. yesterday to midnight Monday. The council also estimated 40 million cars will be on the highways during the holiday period.

FIRST REPORTS of violent deaths showed four killed in traffic accidents and four by drowning.

There were 434 violent deaths in the three-day holiday last year.

The record July 4 three-day violent death toll was 676 in 1949. The largest July 4 three-day traffic toll was 366 in 1952.

Celebrations at some of the nation's most historic shrines however, will keep alive an appreciation of the country's early struggles and of the courage required to overcome them.

There will be ceremonies at Valley Forge, near Philadelphia, where prospects for American success in the War for Independence reached their lowest ebb.

Ashville's Big 4th Program Is Under Way

One of the biggest Fourth of July celebrations in the history of Pickaway County was under way Saturday afternoon at Ashville, bringing with it a gala variety of attractions that will carry the fun and relaxation up to midnight on Monday.

A parade and contest to select a Little Miss Fourth of July began at 2 p. m. Saturday. A parade and contest for the older girls—to select a Miss Fourth of July—was set to start at 7:30 p. m. Saturday.

A Western Horse Show and Rodeo will be the big feature for Sunday being planned for Ashville Community Park.

Then, on Monday, the big Fourth of July parade is scheduled for 11 a. m. Visitors from all over the county and beyond will line the curbs when the marchers move past.

A CARNIVAL will be in full swing Monday afternoon and evening at the park. A band concert is slated for 1 p. m., and the big evening dance begins at 8:30 p. m.

Fireworks at midnight will bring the three-day celebration to an end.

Ohio Congressmen Disagree On How Buckeye Farmers View Parity Setup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Michael J. Kirwan is an Ohio Democrat who says the farmers are going to help push his party into power in the House this fall.

In Kirwan's view, this week's argument over a new farm program proposed by the Administration was a repeat performance of 1948.

That, it will be recalled, was the year Harry S. Truman, with a big boost from farmers, was elected over Thomas Dewey.

As chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, Kirwan, of Youngstown, took a special interest in the farm bill the House took up this week.

The Administration wanted flexible price supports. The Democrats, or at least many of them, wanted them held high, as they are. Yesterday the House approved a sliding scale of price supports ranging from 82½ to 90 per cent of parity.

While debate on the measure droned inside the House chambers, Kirwan perched himself on a window seat just outside.

What farmers in his district want, he said, is fewer government directives over what farmers may or may not plant. He said this may only be made possible by relaxing support prices as the Administration wants to do.

Actually, Ohio farmers improved their financial position in the first four months of 1954, as compared with the same period a year ago, according to Department of Agriculture figures on farm income.

The comparative figures for these months are: 1954—$330,957,000; 1953—$317,964,000. In the nation, farm income for these same periods dropped from $8,757,050,000 to $8,428,347,000.

These figures don't sound right to Rep. James Polk (D-Ohio) of Highland County.

Prices in Ohio have been going down on feeder cattle, wheat, corn and wool, he says, and are beginning to go down on hogs because of a "big spring crop."

"The information I have," said Polk, an advocate of the higher support present program, "and from my contacts with farmers, there has been a definite decrease in farm income."

Bookkeepers Figuring Up Industry Profit

First Half Of 1954 To Be Compared With Last Year's Tally

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Bookkeepers are totting up their profit and loss entries today for American industry's first six months. The chances look fairly good that as a whole business will have earned about as much in the nervous six months just ended as it did in 1953's cocky first half year.

First indications of this are given today by some companies with off-beat fiscal years. These are the ones whose first six-month periods closed in May or April, instead of June 30, as with most corporations. Reports of most industrial companies won't be coming in volume until the end of the month.

Banks, however, will be reporting over the coming weekend. Most are expected to show income equal or surpassing a year ago. Interest rates were easing during the period, but the banks had a lot of money to invest and returns from their securities will sweeten their statements.

Some 22 of the industrial companies with off-beat fiscal years have reported. Fourteen, or two-thirds of them, did better this year in net earnings after taxes than they did in the similar six months a year earlier.

But among the eight with lower profits this year was the one really big company in the lot. This rubber firm reflects the troubles of some companies in the auto industry this year. These customers of the rubber company weren't buying as many tires for original equipment, so the rubber firm's profits dropped three million dollars from the year before.

Without the rubber company, the other 21 corporations would have turned in a collective report card 7 per cent better than last year's.

Add in the one big company with less profits and the 22 have combined earnings of $38,619,433. This is a 4 per cent drop from the $40,256,815 of the year before.

The sampling is too small to draw firm conclusions for American business as a whole. But in the first three months of this year profits ran ahead of the 1953 period for business as a whole.

It's 1953's whopping second quarter, however, which business will be compared with this time. For the first six months of last year profits ran 17 per cent ahead of the 1952 period.

If they come near to 1953's record performance, companies this year will be doing far better than they were doing two years ago.

The 22 off-beat year companies reporting are too widely distributed among industries to give much of a clue as to how whole groups are doing.

Among those with lower profits this year—and one operated in the red—are companies making paint, plywood, appliances, clothing, textiles, brass and metal parts.

Those doing better this year are in the following fields: Air conditioning, machinery, tools, shoes, corsets, chemicals, cameras, aircraft, paper, limestone and movies.

None is necessarily typical of its industry group.

Some of those making more money this year report greater sales volume. Some, however, report larger net profits although sales volume has slipped. They have been able to trim costs of operation or of spending for expansion. In a number of instances they have saved, through relief from excess profit tax payments, enough to offset lower gross earnings.

Executives of some companies showing lower profits in the first half are assuring stockholders that prospects have improved of late and they expect the entire year to show as good or better results as 1953.

Fight To Help Prisoner Fails

RAVENNA (AP)—A 44-year-old Negro father of four, whose employees and fellow workers at a Cleveland foundry backed his court fight against extradition, must return to an Alabama prison to serve a life term for a murder conviction.

Common Pleas Judge Albert Carls so ruled yesterday in deciding against an objection that Ohio Gov. Frank J. Lausche had improperly granted the extradition.

The father, Chester A. McAfee, insisted steadfastly he is innocent of the murder in 1947 and that he was convicted after a trial that lasted only 15 minutes.

Rebel Leader To Be Hailed In Guatemala

GUATEMALA (AP)—Rebel leader Col. Carlos Castillo Armas planned to fly to this welcome-gear capital today to discuss his role in Guatemala's new anti-Communist government. But dissatisfaction in the ranks of the leader's "liberation army" dimmed the triumph of the occasion.

Castillo acknowledged at his Chiquimula headquarters yesterday that "most of my men are not satisfied with the agreement reached in San Salvador."

The peace pact, signed with Col. Elfigo Monzon in the capital of neighboring El Salvador, patched together a five-man junta. Monzon was allowed to remain on as government chief until the junta elected a permanent head in 15 days.

It was not known whether Monzon also planned to return to the Guatemalan capital today.

Both colonels were expected back yesterday, and Guatemala put on a big fiesta to welcome them. The celebration, starting out gaily with popping fireworks and clanging church bells, fizzled out as the two men failed to show up.

Castillo flew back to Chiquimula to explain the San Salvador settlement to his disappointed aides and prepare his troops for entry into the capital.

He told reporters in Chiquimula his top subordinates had wanted to push ahead with the rebellion until the Guatemalan army surrendered unconditionally. He said, however, he was satisfied with the settlement ending the two-week revolt because it was victory over the Reds. He declared:

"I am entirely sure the junta will eliminate the Communists."

Fireworks Shipment Found All Legal

Fire Chief Talmer Wise has disclosed that a shipment of fireworks recently received at a railroad freight station here was ordered and received in accordance with the law.

Due to rigid restrictions on the sale and use of fireworks in Ohio, public attention had been focused on a 14-pound shipment of fireworks which had been delivered earlier this week to the Pennsylvania freight station.

Wise said it developed a legal permit for the fireworks had been obtained by Hugh Huffer, who lives near Amanda. The permit had been issued by the Fairfield County sheriff's office, and the fireworks are intended for a small private display several days after the Fourth of July.

Huffer, who explained it was easier for him to have the shipment dropped off at Circleville than it would be at some Fairfield County point, visited Wise and Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff to clear up questions concerning the shipment.

Florida Reminder, And Timely Too!

From Florida comes a timely reminder that the original Declaration of Independence is not where a lot of people think it is today.

Mrs. Gayle C. Wolf of 550 Phelps Ave., Winter Park, Fla., referred to a recent article in The Herald to explain that the honored document is no longer kept in the Library of Congress, Mrs. Wolf, the former Ann Denman, said a questionnaire embodied in the article was not correct in saying the original document has been on display in the Library of Congress since 1921.

That was true, she explained but only up until December 1952.

Mrs. Wolf said the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, and the Bill of Rights are now enshrined in the National Archives Exhibition Hall in the nation's capital.

At the Washington Memorial Chapel there acting Gov. Charles E. Johns of Florida will speak.

There will also be other ceremonies at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, home of the Liberty Bell.

Fireworks will light up Boston's famed common, where independence was preached and stoutly defended. And several blocks away at the old statehouse, now a historical museum, the Declaration of Independence will be read by an honor student from Boston Latin School, the oldest school in the country.

A MAMMOTH fireworks display will be set off July 5 at the grounds of the Washington Monument in Washington D. C. This annual show usually draws thousands to the nation's capital.

The nation's first family, President and Mrs. Eisenhower, will not be in town to see the sight. They plan a quiet holiday weekend at Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland's mountains.

Vice President Richard Nixon will be among the holiday orators. Today he goes to Somerset, Pa., to take part in the town's sesquicentennial celebration.

Another celebration in western Pennsylvania will mark the 200th anniversary of the Battle of Ft. Necessity near Uniontown, Pa., which opened the French and Indian War. The speaker there will be Gen. George C. Marshall.

On the other side of the country in California a huge fireworks display will be touched off Sunday in the 103,000-seat Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum. The next day another big show will be staged at Pasadena's Rose Bowl, where 80,000 are expected.

In Texas the traditional Fourth of July celebrations are rodeos and cowboy reunions. In Flagstaff, Ariz., more than 12,000 Indians were in town for three nights of ceremonial powwows.

Underworld Queen Dies In Dallas

DALLAS (AP)—Maud Lynch, queen of the Dallas underworld and pickpocket deluxe back in Prohibition days is dead.

Maud died last night just 15 minutes after she reached a hospital after she had been found ill and half-paralyzed in a cheap walk-up hotel. She was 56, broke and alone. Doctors said she apparently had suffered a stroke.

A petite young woman with dark chestnut hair, her trademarks were swank black limousines and white furs back in Texas' roaring 20s and early 30s. She amassed a fortune, police said, as a prostitute, shoplifter and pickpocket.

She wore diamonds worth thousands of dollars and often pawned them if she needed a quick dollar for a down-and-out old pal, man or woman.

Veteran policemen remember her in the 20s as a nimble-fingered pickpocket who stole from many a wealthy customer, lured into her big car by her apparent affluence and genuine beauty.

She had a horror of riding to jail in a patrol wagon. Maud dodged it hundreds of times by simply surrendering at headquarters to inquire if her male victim had complained. Her scandal-shy victims rarely appeared against her.

Here Is How Ohio Voted On Ag Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here is how Ohio representatives voted on the compromise sliding-scale farm price support program, passed yesterday by a 228-170 vote:

Leistville Accident First Since Signal Installed In May

First accident reported at "Dead Man's Crossing" at Leistville since a new flasher light was installed in May occurred Friday at 1:35 p. m. The driver of a Tennessee car has been accused of failure to yield the right of way by Sheriff's deputies.

According to Deputies Carl White and Dwight Radcliff, Wesley Crumpton, 59, of Marysville, Tenn., failed to yield the right of way to Stanley O. Rohrer, 32, of Ashville Route 2. A passenger in Rohrer's milk truck was injured. Harold Dearth, 16, of Circleville, suffered an injury to his left hip, according to the report.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Routes 56 and 159, scene of a number of fatalities over the years.

City Police Urge Light Hoods Again

Circleville city police officers warned again Saturday that steps should be made to put hoods on certain traffic lights, to reduce or eliminate the difficulties due to sun glare.

Officers on traffic duty have frequently reported that motorists are unable to read the traffic signals at some intersections in the early morning or late afternoon — when the bright sun is close to the horizon.

At least one recent accident was blamed directly on this difficulty. City Council has discussed the matter several times, and officials said steps would be taken to see that the lights are given more adequate shields.

Native Protest French Retreat

SAIGON, Indochina (AP)—Viet Nam's Premier Ngo Dinh Diem told the French High Command today "grave political consequences" would follow evacuation of French Union forces south of the Red River Delta.

The new premier issued a communique in which he said he had "vigorously protested" the withdrawal when he heard about it.

The Nationalist premier called on the Vietnamese to remain calm in the face of the evacuation which leaves some two million delta inhabitants in the hands of the Communist-led Vietminh.

Ohio Power Hikes Pay To All Aides

CANTON (AP)—Ohio Power Co. is extending a three per cent pay boost to all its employees.

Today's action grants that boost to others of the company's 4,000 employees. Present wage scales were not available.

ated to continue on the program. The Fund actually is given appropriations one year at a time.

Since 22 counties did not fill their allotted quotas, the scholarships remaining will be given to those counties who had more applicants than their quota. Pickaway County falls in this category, according to County superintendent George McDowell, who said he had two more names submitted.

Applicants were warned that, in case the 101st Ohio General Assembly failed to appropriate money for the Fund for 1955-56, they would have to complete their program at their own expense. However, in view of the tremendous teacher shortage this does not seem likely, says McDowell.

The Fund was established by the 100th General Assembly which appropriated $250,000 for the fiscal year 1953-54 and $500,000 for 1954-55. It provides for $500 a year for 500 applicants.

THE FOLLOWING are the approved schools for study under this program: University of Akron, Ashland College, Baldwin-Wallace College, Bluffton College, Bowling Green State University, Capital University, Central State College, University of Dayton, Defiance College, Kent State University, Lake Erie College, Mary Manse College, Miami University, Mount St. Joseph-Oberlin College, Muskingum College, Ohio Northern University, Ohio University, Otterbein College, Our Lady of Cincinnati College, Rio Grande College, Steubenville College, Wilmington College, Wittenberg College and Youngstown College.

Two Wheat Field Blazes On Friday

With harvesting in full swing, two wheat field fires were reported Friday by the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department. Both were the result of fires started in or by combines.

Deputy Sheriff Carl White reports a fire on the farm of Alex Mace, of Williamsport Route 2, started in a combine and burned five acres. The blaze spread to the neighboring farm of George Hammond and burned an additional five acres there.

Fire departments from both Williamsport and Clarksburg answered the call. Deputy White said that there were 75 to 100 volunteer firemen on the scene to help put out the blaze.

Over in another fire, some straw caught fire on a combine and went quickly to the wheat field on the Whitney-Lamb farm. This is located on Route 104 one mile north of Route 316.

One acre of standing wheat and two acres of straw were destroyed according to Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff. Firemen from the Ashville Fire Department answered the call.

Guard Unit Leaves Sunday For Camp

Circleville's Ohio National Guard unit, Co. I, 166th Regimental Combat Team, leaves for two weeks of summer camp early Sunday morning. The Company, commanded by Capt. John McGinnis, will join other units from southern Ohio in a convoy to Indiantown Gap, Pa.

The truck and bus convoy will take two days for the trip with an overnight stop outside of Alliance Sunday night. The units are due at camp by 6 p. m. Monday.

Ohio National Guard is undergoing two weeks of intensive training during the two weeks at camp. They will get individual exercises, weapons practice and then be integrated into large scale maneuvers.

The units are due back July 18.

Rainy And Hot Weather Due For East U.S.

CHICAGO (AP)—Rainy and fairly hot weather was the outlook today for wide areas in the eastern half of the country.

The hot weather showed no break over most of the Southland. But there was a little cooling in mid-continent areas after thunderstorms hit sections from the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast.

It was 90-plus temperatures again yesterday across the southern half of the nation with readings in the 90s extending as far north as southern Nebraska across the southern tip of the Great Lakes and to the New York area.

It was above 100 degrees in some parts of southeastern Colorado, Kansas, Missouri and southeastern Nebraska. Cloudy skies and rain brought cooling to the northern Great Lakes region and the Northern Plains. Generally pleasant weather prevailed in the northeast and northwest.

Heaviest rainfalls were from the Dakotas eastward over the Great Lakes with amounts ranging from 1/4 to nearly one inch. The Far West remained dry except for light rain in Arizona. Hot weather continued in the Southwest desert region with the day's highest reading of 110 in Needles, Calif.

Probers Studying Jet Plane Crash

UTICA, N. Y. (AP)—A special Air Force team today spearheaded an investigation of the wreckage of a jet fighter plane that crashed into a hamlet crossroads near here yesterday and killed four persons.

The fuel in the rocket-laden F94C Starfire apparently exploded and set fires that destroyed an automobile and two houses.

The plane's pilot and radar observer bailed out and escaped injury. Killed were three persons riding in the automobile and a woman occupant of one of the houses.

Ike-Backers Claim Pair Of Victories

by Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

Eisenhower was a big step closer to a substantial victory on 1954 tax legislation after overwhelming Senate approval of his general tax overhaul bill.

Treasury Department experts who have been battling for the administration's tax viewpoint before Congress for months said they were satisfied with the Senate action despite some setbacks.

The Senate passed the bill 63 to 9 yesterday after five days of often heated debate and two months work on the 875-page measure by the Senate Finance Committee, which wrote 430 pages of amendments. The complicated legislation is the first general revision of federal tax laws since 1876.

INCLUDED in the Senate bill, as in the version already okayed by the House, were nearly all the relief provisions sought by the administration. In addition, the Senate beat back four separate attempts to add a general income tax cut.

The major change made by the Senate, and the issue likely to cause the biggest fight in conference with the House, was to knock out of the bill most of the proposed relief to stockholders on dividend income.

The Senate left in the bill only the $50 exemption of such income from taxation. As passed by the House, the provision would give this exemption and also permit a stockholder to deduct from his tax 5 per cent of his dividend income in the first year of the bill; from the second year on, he could get exemption on $100 of dividend income and deduct 10 per cent of such income above $100.

Bookkeepers Figuring Up Industry Profit

First Half Of 1954 To Be Compared With Last Year's Tally

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Bookkeepers are touting up their profit and loss entries today for American industry's first six months. The chances look fairly good that as a whole business will have earned about as much in the nervous six months just ended as it did in 1953's cocky first half year.

First indications of this are given today by some companies with off-beat fiscal years. These are the ones whose first six-month periods closed in May or April, instead of June 30, as with most corporations. Reports of most industrial companies won't be coming in volume until the end of the month.

Banks, however, will be reporting over the coming weekend. Most are expected to show income equal or surpassing a year ago. Interest rates were easing during the period, but the banks had a lot of money to invest and returns from their securities will sweeten their statements.

Some 22 of the industrial companies with off-beat fiscal years have reported. Fourteen, or two-thirds of them, did better this year in net earnings after taxes than they did in the similar six months a year earlier.

On the other side of the country in California a huge fireworks display will be touched off Sunday in the 103,000-seat Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum. The next day another big show will be staged at Pasadena's Rose Bowl, where 80,000 are expected.

In Texas the traditional Fourth of July celebrations are rodeos and cowboy reunions.

In Flagstaff, Ariz., more than 12,000 Indians were in town for three nights of ceremonial powwows.

Underworld Queen Dies In Dallas

DALLAS (AP)—Maud Lych, queen of the Dallas underworld and pickpocket deluxe back in Prohibition days is dead.

Maud died last night just 15 minutes after she reached a hospital after she had been found ill and half-paralyzed in a cheap walk-up hotel. She was 56, broke and alone. Doctors said she apparently had suffered a stroke.

A petite young woman with dark chestnut hair, her trademarks were swank black limousines and white furs back in Texas' roaring 20s and early 30s. She amassed a fortune, police said, as a prostitute, shoplifter and pickpocket.

She wore diamonds worth thousands of dollars and often pawned them if she needed a quick dollar for a down-and-out old pal, man or woman.

Veteran policemen remember her in the 20s as a nimble-fingered pickpocket who stole from many a wealthy customer, lured into her big car by her apparent affluence and genuine beauty.

She had a horror of riding to jail in a patrol wagon. Maud dodged it hundreds of times by simply surrendering at headquarters to inquire if her male victim had complained. Her scandal-shy victims rarely appeared against her.

Democrats for—none.

Independent for—Reams.

Republicans against—None.

Democrats against—Crosser, Hays, Kirwan and Polk.

Paired for—Weichel (R).

Reps. Seerest and Feighan, both Democrats, were not listed as voting or paired.

Minister Dies

GENEVA (AP)—The Rev. Charles H. Stull, 81, retired Baptist minister who for 25 years was director of evangelism for the Ohio Baptist Convention, is dead.

GREAT GRANDMOTHER ZADDLE R. BUNKER, 66, waves from cockpit of her plane in Palm Springs, Calif., before starting on a 15,000-mile see-the-country flight. Two years ago she overcame a "conspiracy" of her relatives who didn't want her to solo. She carries a letter from California's governor to Pennsylvania's governor, lauding her as "believed to be the only great grandmother ever issued a pilot's license in the U.S.A." (International)

Leistville Accident First Since Signal Installed In May

First accident reported at "Dead Man's Crossing" at Leistville since a new flasher light was installed in May occurred Friday at 1:35 p. m. The driver of a Tennessee car has been accused of failure to yield the right of way by Sheriff's deputies.

According to Deputies Carl White and Dwight Radcliff, Wesley Crumpton, 59, of Marysville, Tenn., failed to yield the right of way to Stanley O. Rohrer, 32, of Ashville Route 2. A passenger in Rohrer's milk truck was injured. Harold Dearth, 16, of Circleville, suffered an injury to his left hip, according to the report.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Routes 56 and 159, scene of a number of fatalities over the years.

City Police Urge Light Hoods Again

Circleville city police officers warned again Saturday that steps should be made to put hoods on certain traffic lights, to reduce or eliminate the difficulties due to sun glare.

Officers on traffic duty have frequently reported that motorists are unable to read the traffic signals at some intersections in the early morning or late afternoon — when the bright sun is close to the horizon.

At least one recent accident was blamed directly on this difficulty. City Council has discussed the matter several times, and officials said steps would be taken to see that the lights are given more adequate shields.

Native Protest French Retreat

SAIGON, Indochina (AP)—Viet Nam's Premier Ngo Dinh Diem told the French High Command today "grave political consequences" would follow evacuation of French Union forces south of the Red River Delta.

The new premier issued a communique in which he said he had "vigorously protested" the withdrawal when he heard about it.

The Nationalist premier called on the Vietnamese to remain calm in the face of the evacuation which leaves some two million delta inhabitants in the hands of the Communist-led Vietminh.

Ohio Power Hikes Pay To All Aides

CANTON (AP)—Ohio Power Co. is extending a three per cent pay boost to all its employees.

The firm, which operates in 55 Ohio counties, granted the boost June 1 to employees at its generating plants after bargaining with the CIO-Utility Workers Union, the AFL Electrical Workers and the Independent Electric Service Union.

Today's action grants that boost to others of the company's 4,000 employees. Present wage scales were not available.

Hamiltonian Jailed

CINCINNATI (AP)—Robert L. Collins, 42, of Hamilton, who pleaded guilty yesterday in U. S. District Court to possessing banned fire arms, was sentenced to four months in jail.

New Graduates Receive Five Scholarships

cated to continue on the program. The Fund actually is given appropriations one year at a time.

Since 22 counties did not fill their allotted quotas, the scholarships remaining will be given to those counties who had more applicants than their quota. Pickaway County falls in this category, according to County superintendent George McDowell, who said he had two more names submitted.

Applicants were warned that, in case the 101st Ohio General Assembly failed to appropriate money for the Fund for 1955-56, they would have to complete their program at their own expense. However, in view of the tremendous teacher shortage this does not seem likely, says McDowell.

The Fund was established by the 100th General Assembly which appropriated $250,000 for the fiscal year 1953-54 and $500,000 for 1954-55. It provides for $500 a year for 50 applicants.

THE FOLLOWING are the approved schools for study under this program: University of Akron, Ashland College, Baldwin-Wallace College, Bluffton College, Bowling Green State University, Capital University, Central State College, University of Dayton, Defiance College, Kent State University, Lake Erie College, Mary Manse College, Miami University, Mount St. Joseph—Ohio, Muskingum College, Ohio Northern University, Ohio University, Otterbein College, Our Lady of Cincinnati College, Rio Grande College, Steubenville College, Wilmington College, Wittenberg College and Youngstown College.

Two Wheat Field Blazes On Friday

With harvesting in full swing, two wheat field fires were reported Friday by the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department. Both were the result of fires started in or by combines.

Deputy Sheriff Carl White reports a fire on the farm of Alex Mace, of Williamsport Route 2, started in a combine and burned five acres. The blaze spread to the neighboring farm of George Hammond and burned an additional five acres there.

Fire departments from both Williamsport and Clarksburg answered the call. Deputy White said that there were 75 to 100 volunteer firemen on the scene to help put out the blaze.

Over in another fire, some straw caught fire on a combine and went quickly to the wheat field on the Whitney-Lamb farm. This is located on Route 104 one mile north of Route 316.

One acre of standing wheat and two acres of straw were destroyed according to Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff. Firemen from the Ashville Fire Department answered the call.

Guard Unit Leaves Sunday For Camp

Circleville's Ohio National Guard unit, Co. 1, 166th Regimental Combat Team, leaves for two weeks of summer camp early Sunday morning. The company, commanded by Capt. John McGinnis, will join other units from southern Ohio in a convoy to Indian town, Ga. Pa.

The truck and bus convoy will take two days for the trip with an overnight stop outside of Alliance Sunday night. The units are due at camp by 6 p. m. Monday.

Ohio National Guard is undergoing two weeks of intensive training during the two weeks at camp. They will get individual exercises, weapons practice and then be integrated into large scale maneuvers.

The units are due back July 18.

Rainy And Hot Weather Due For East U.S.

CHICAGO (AP)—Rainy and fairly hot weather was the outlook today for wide areas in the eastern half of the country.

The hot weather showed no break over most of the Southland. But there was a little cooling in mid-continent areas after thunderstorms hit sections from the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast.

It was 90-plus temperatures again yesterday across the southern half of the nation with readings in the 90s extending as far north as southern Nebraska across the southern tip of the Great Lakes and to the New York area.

It was above 100 degrees in some parts of southeastern Colorado, Kansas, Missouri and southeastern Nebraska. Cloudy skies and rain brought cooling to the northern Great Lakes region and the Northern Plains. Generally pleasant weather prevailed in the northeast and northwest.

Heaviest rainfalls were from the Dakotas eastward over the Great Lakes with amounts ranging from 1/4 to nearly one inch. The Far West remained dry except for light rain in Arizona. Hot weather continued in the Southwest desert region with the day's highest reading of 110 in Needles, Calif.

Probers Studying Jet Plane Crash

UTICA, N. Y. (AP)—A special Air Force team today spearheaded an investigation of the wreckage of a jet fighter plane that crashed into a hamlet crossroads near here yesterday and killed four persons.

The fuel in the rocket-laden F94C Starfire apparently exploded and set fires that destroyed an automobile and two houses.

The plane's pilot and radar observer bailed out and escaped injury. Killed were three persons riding in the automobile and a woman occupant of one of the houses.

Trucker Killed

LIMA (AP)—Leonard Sutter, 50, of Pandora was killed yesterday when two pickup trucks collided at a rural crossroad southwest of Bluffton.

Deputy Sheriff Carl White reports a fire on the farm of Alex Mace, of Williamsport Route 2, started in a combine and burned five acres. The blaze spread to the neighboring farm of George Hammond and burned an additional five acres there.

Ike-Backers Claim Pair Of Victories

by Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

Eisenhower was a big step closer to a substantial victory on 1954 tax legislation after overwhelming Senate approval of his general tax overhaul bill.

Treasury Department experts who have been battling for the administration's tax viewpoint before Congress for months said they were satisfied with the Senate action despite some setbacks.

The Senate passed the bill 63 to 9 yesterday after five days of often heated debate and two months work on the 875-page measure by the Senate Finance Committee, which wrote 430 pages of amendments. The complicated legislation is the first general revision of federal tax laws since 1876.

INCLUDED IN the Senate bill, as in the version already okayed by the House, were nearly all the relief provisions sought by the administration. In addition, the Senate beat back four separate attempts to add a general income tax cut.

The major change made by the Senate, and the issue likely to cause the biggest fight in conference with the House, was to knock out of the bill most of the proposed relief to stockholders on dividend income.

The Senate left in the bill only the $50 exemption of such income from taxation. As passed by the House, the provision would give this exemption and also permit a stockholder to deduct from his tax 5 per cent of his dividend income in the first year of the bill; from the second year on, he could get exemption on $100 of dividend income and deduct 10 per cent of such income above $100.

3 Services Listed At First Methodist

The regular mid-Summer communion services will be held at the First Methodist Church Sunday. There will be three services. The first will be at 7 a. m., and will be shorter than services at 8 a. m. and 10:30 a. m. The later services will be the same, except for the ministry of music.

At the 8 a. m. service, "O Troubled Heart Be Still", by Hamblin, will be sung by Nancy Hughes. At the 10:30 a. m. service, "This Is My Prayer", by Newman, will be sung by a quartet. Members of this group will be: Mrs. Larry Graham, soprano; Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, alto; Gene Cronenwett, tenor; Dr. W. Lloyd Sprouse, bass.

The Rev. Charles D. Reed, recently assigned as new pastor at the church, has chosen for his communion meditations the text, "Greater Love Hath No Man."

Freedom Concept Topic Of Sermon For Presbyterians

Following the season's theme of Independence Day the Rev. Donald E. Mitchell, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, will preach on the subject, "Let Freedom Ring."

A study of the seven most outstanding documents of human freedom shows that they were designed so to direct people in the correct governing of themselves, as to leave all men personally responsible for their own and their family's welfare. Patrick Henry recognized the hard fact that Personal Responsibility, necessarily accompanies the kind of freedom for which this nation with its form of government, was established.

The sermon will develop the thought expressed by the greatest authority on the concept of freedom when he said, "Ye shall know the Truth and the Truth shall make you free." (John 8:32).

Larry Thornton, student for the Gospel Ministry and now in his sophomore year of college work at Ohio University at Athens, will read the Scripture.

In the choir, "Who Is God, Save the Lord," will be sung as a trio by Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Burkhardt and Melvin Yates.

During the week, an all-church and Sunday school picnic will be held at the Harry Montelius Farm, Wednesday, July 7. Games and social hour at 4 p. m., supper at 6 p. m.

In the evening at 7:30 p. m., Boy Scouts, their parents and all interested in scouting will meet at the church to draw up immediate plans for the troop summer activities.

The pastor, Moderator of the Presbytery, will conduct an adjourned meeting of Presbytery, at the Bainbridge Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p. m. that evening and officiate in the service of worship at 8 p. m. for the ordaining of the licentiate Emory Lowe Jr. to the Gospel Ministry. Lowe will be then installed as pastor of the Bainbridge Church from which he has received his Call.

Church Briefs

St. Philip's Rites Linked With 4th

St. Philip's Episcopal Church will observe Independence Day Sunday with special emphasis being given to our nation's role and responsibility under God's guidance.

At the two celebrations of The Holy Eucharist, special "prayers" from the Book of Common Prayer set aside for Independence Day by the church will be used. Collects and prayers for the nation and its leaders will be said by the priest and people.

The parish choir under the direction of Mrs. Howard B. Moore will sing a special anthem for the offertory.

Independence Day Is Emphasized By First EUB Church

The Unified Worship - Church School service of First Evangelical United Brethren Church, Sunday at 9:30 a. m., emphasizes the importance of a Christian nation in keeping with an Independence Day theme, "America's Heritage."

Mrs. Verneal Thomas, organist, plays the prelude, "Strength and Stay" by Peery, after which the Fidelis Chorus sings the processional hymn, "Holy, Holy Holy." Other organ numbers by Mrs. Thomas are: "Sunday Morning", by Lawrence and "The Glory Way", by Ritter.

The congregation participates in the Order of Service by joining Church School Superintendent Edwin Richardson in the call to worship, the Invocation, the Reaffirmation of a Common Faith in Praise, Doctrine and Prayer, and in singing hymns, "America the Beautiful" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

The Fidelis Chorus sings the anthem, "God of Our Fathers" by Warren and Lorenz.

Speaking from scriptural directives in Psalm 33:12, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord; and the people whom He hath chosen for His inheritance" and from Psalm 16:6, "Yea, I have a godly heritage," the Rev. Carl L. Wilson says in part,

"These two Biblical references teach that a nation whose God is the Lord has a rich inheritance which cannot be denied. As America stands on the threshold of another Independence Day, she stands in the presence of those who have stepped before and ahead into the life beyond."

"According to the Christian faith these are not dead but gloriously alive. If we are willing they still serve us well. By our idealization of their virtue, traits of character and heroic acts, we become better people. We draw inspiration from them; strength for the act of living and accept our personal responsibility for preserving this inheritance and leaving it richer and more valuable for those who follow us."

"America is our heritage. Our fathers gave us a land called America. Although these early fathers did not know fully the possibilities of this land they possessed it with faith and confidence. They crossed the barriers, the mountains, river and terrible desert. All frontiers came down."

"They explored the land, surveyed it, planted seed upon it, dug shafts into mountains for coal and gold, carried water into the desert and made it bloom like a rose. This is the land of our inheritance, gained by the work of man and the blessing of God. It is a land of liberty, our great inheritance."

"There are other inheritances in America. Christianity plays a vital part. Our inheritance was given by those who knew the value of prayer, the family altar, the 'church-going' worshipper of Jehovah. These people devoted to Christian ideals and purposes kept our nation alive spiritually. The Bible with its Christian Education instructions was their guide. They believed it, taught it to the children, lived and died by the Word of God. The privilege and practice of prayer, reading and studying the Bible, attending the means of worship and loyalty to the church kept America's heritage alive."

"Thus, when one evaluates America's heritage there is conclusive evidence that this inheritance includes the land, liberty high ideals, the church, the word of God, the Christ of the Cross and God of salvation."

"How best may we protect this heritage and increase it for those who follow us? First, by accepting from our forefathers what they gave us. Second, by sincere appreciation of our inheritance and cherishing it most highly. Third, by passing it on, enhanced and multiplied to our children's children."

Church school classes study the Bible lesson, "Jesus, our Example and Lord."

Trinity Lutherans Told To Consider Blessings Enjoyed

The 8:30 and 10:45 a. m. worship services this Sunday in Trinity Lutheran Church will be conducted by intern Donald Kearns. Mr. Kearns' sermon theme will be "Our Blessings Under God" based on Psalm 33:12. In his sermon Mr. Kearns states,

"The 4th of July is an appropriate time for us to pause and consider the many blessings which we have enjoyed through the years as citizens of this nation, the relevance of the message founded upon God."

"Biblical and secular history both record many examples of nations which have been blessed while they trusted in God and which have forfeited that blessing by turning their backs on him."

"It is not sufficient for us to print the phrase, 'In God we Trust' on our money. This trust must be firmly planted in the heart of each American. We as citizens and as a nation must place our undivided trust in God and recognize that, 'every good and perfect gift cometh from above.'"

"If we reject God he will also reject us but if we trust in him and love him with all of our heart, mind and soul, we will be richly blessed as a nation, as a congregation, and as individuals."

The junior choir will furnish the music for the early service and music for the late service will be supplied by the senior choir.

Sunday school will be at the regular hour of 9:30 a. m.

How Congregation Is Organized Told Church Of Christ

"Congregational Independence" is given as the sermon topic for Sunday, for the church of Christ meeting at 159 E. Main St.

In commenting on the lesson evangelist Charles Cochran says: "The wisdom of Christ is seen in His arrangement of the organization of the New Testament church. Under the direct supervision of the inspired apostles, the local congregations of the church were organized into independent, self-governing bodies with elders and deacons."

"This system proved to be a great safeguard against wholesale apostasy of the church. If anything happened to one congregation and it proved to be unfaithful in doctrine and practice, other congregations were not led into apostasy by connection with it. However, if the congregations were connected by an inter-congregational organization, and something should go wrong with the governing body and error should creep in, the whole church would be affected and led into apostasy."

"In New Testament days each congregation had a plurality of elders of equal rank and standing. They were referred to as 'elders, pastors, bishops, and overseers.' All of these designations referred to the same office or group of men."

"However, congregations began to select one out of the group of elders as their chairman, who in time began to exercise more authority and arrogated to himself the title of 'bishop,' which should have been given to all alike. Several congregations would to together and appoint one 'bishop' to be over all the others and with more authority. Synods and councils were formulated and new laws and regulations were made in these legislative assemblies."

"This soon advanced from a local arrangement to district, regional, national and finally an international arrangement with one universal bishop, over all the church, residing in the city of Rome. The pattern given by the apostles had been completely set aside. Paul's warning in Acts 20:17-38 and in 2 Thess. 2, of an approaching apostasy, had come to pass as he had said."

Calvary EUB Topic Of Sunday Sermon Concerns Prophet

The service of worship will begin at 9 a. m. Sunday in the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church with the prelude being played by Miss Minnie Wilkerson, church pianist.

The opening portion of the worship service will be directed by Clark Zwyer, assistant Sunday church school superintendent.

The pastor, the Rev. James B. Recob, will speak on a theme appropriate for Independence Day. His topic will be "The Prophet and the Nation". In the sermon the Rev. Mr. Recob will speak concerning the relevance of the message of the prophet Jeremiah to our nation today.

A program for children under twelve is regularly carried on in the educational unit of the church simultaneously with the adult program. Mrs. W. C. Shasteen, children's director, is in charge of the program. Nursery facilities are available for small children.

Jesus, Our Example and Lord

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 2:40-52

When the Lord Jesus was a little child, dwelling with His parents in Nazareth, He grew "and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon Him."

When Jesus was 12 years old, His father and mother took Him to the Passover in Jerusalem. When they were returning home they missed Him and sought Him among their companions.

Back in Jerusalem, they found Jesus in the temple with learned doctors, asking and answering questions. His mother chided Him, but He answered that He "was about His Father's business."

Returning to Nazareth, Jesus was an obedient Son to His parents, and as He grew in stature and wisdom, He was "in favor with God and Man."

MEMORY VERSE—Luke 2:40.

Freedom Concept Topic Of Sermon For Presbyterians

Following the season's theme of Independence Day the Rev. Donald E. Mitchell, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, will preach on the subject, "Let Freedom Ring."

A study of the seven most outstanding documents of human freedom shows that they were designed so to direct people in the correct governing of themselves, as to leave all men personally responsible for their own and their family's welfare. Patrick Henry recognized the hard fact that Personal Responsibility, necessarily accompanies the kind of freedom for which this nation with its form of government, was established.

The sermon will develop the thought expressed by the greatest authority on the concept of freedom when he said, "Ye shall know the Truth and the Truth shall make you free." (John 8:32).

Larry Thornton, student for the Gospel Ministry and now in his sophomore year of college work at Ohio University at Athens, will read the Scripture.

In the choir, "Who Is God, Save the Lord," will be sung as a trio by Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Burkhardt and Melvin Yates.

During the week, an all-church and Sunday school picnic will be held at the Harry Montelius Farm, Wednesday, July 7. Games and social hour at 4 p. m., supper at 6 p. m.

In the evening at 7:30 p. m., Boy Scouts, their parents and all interested in scouting will meet at the church to draw up immediate plans for the troop summer activities.

The pastor, Moderator of the Presbytery, will conduct an adjourned meeting of Presbytery, at the Bainbridge Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p. m. that evening and officiate in the service of worship at 8 p. m. for the ordaining of the licentiate Emory Lowe Jr., to the Gospel Ministry. Lowe will be then installed as pastor of the Bainbridge Church from which he has received his Call.

Independence Day Is Emphasized By First EUB Church

The Unified Worship - Church School service of First Evangelical United Brethren Church, Sunday at 9:30 a. m., emphasizes the importance of a Christian nation in keeping with an Independence Day theme, "America's Heritage."

Mrs. Verneal Thomas, organist, plays the prelude, "Strength and Stay" by Peery, after which the Fidelis Chorus sings the processional hymn, "Holy, Holy Holy." Other organ numbers by Mrs. Thomas are: "Sunday Morning", by Lawrence and "The Glory Way", by Ritter.

The congregation participates in the Order of Service by joining Church School Superintendent Edwin Richardson in the call to worship, the Invocation, the Reaffirmation of a Common Faith in Praise, Doctrine and Prayer, and in singing hymns, "America the Beautiful" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

The Fidelis Chorus sings the anthem, "God of Our Fathers" by Warren and Lorenz.

Speaking from scriptural directives in Psalm 33:12, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord; and the people whom He hath chosen for His inheritance" and from Psalm 16:6, "Yea, I have a godly heritage," the Rev. Carl L. Wilson says in part.

"These two Biblical references teach that a nation whose God is the Lord has a rich inheritance which cannot be denied. As America stands on the threshold of another Independence Day, she stands in the presence of those who have stepped before and ahead into the life beyond."

"According to the Christian faith these are not dead but gloriously alive. If we are willing they still serve us well. By our idealization of their virtue, traits of character and heroic acts, we become better people; we draw inspiration from them; strength for the act of living and accept our personal responsibility for preserving this inheritance and leaving it richer and more valuable for those who follow us."

"America is our heritage. Our fathers gave us a land called America. Although these early fathers did not know fully the possibilities of this land they possessed it with faith and confidence. They crossed the barriers, the mountains, river and terrible desert. All frontiers came down."

"They explored the land, surveyed it, planted seed upon it, dug shafts into mountains for coal and gold, carried water into the desert and made it bloom like a rose. This is the land of our inheritance, gained by the work of man and the blessing of God. It is a land of liberty, our great inheritance."

"There are other inheritances in America. Christianity plays a vital part. Our inheritance was given by those who knew the value of prayer, the family altar, the 'church-going' worshiper of Jehovah. These people devoted to Christian ideals and purposes kept our nation alive spiritually. The Bible with its Christian Education instructions was their guide. They believed it, taught it to the children, lived and died by the Word of God. The privilege and practice of prayer, reading and studying the Bible, attending the means of worship and loyalty to the church kept America's heritage alive."

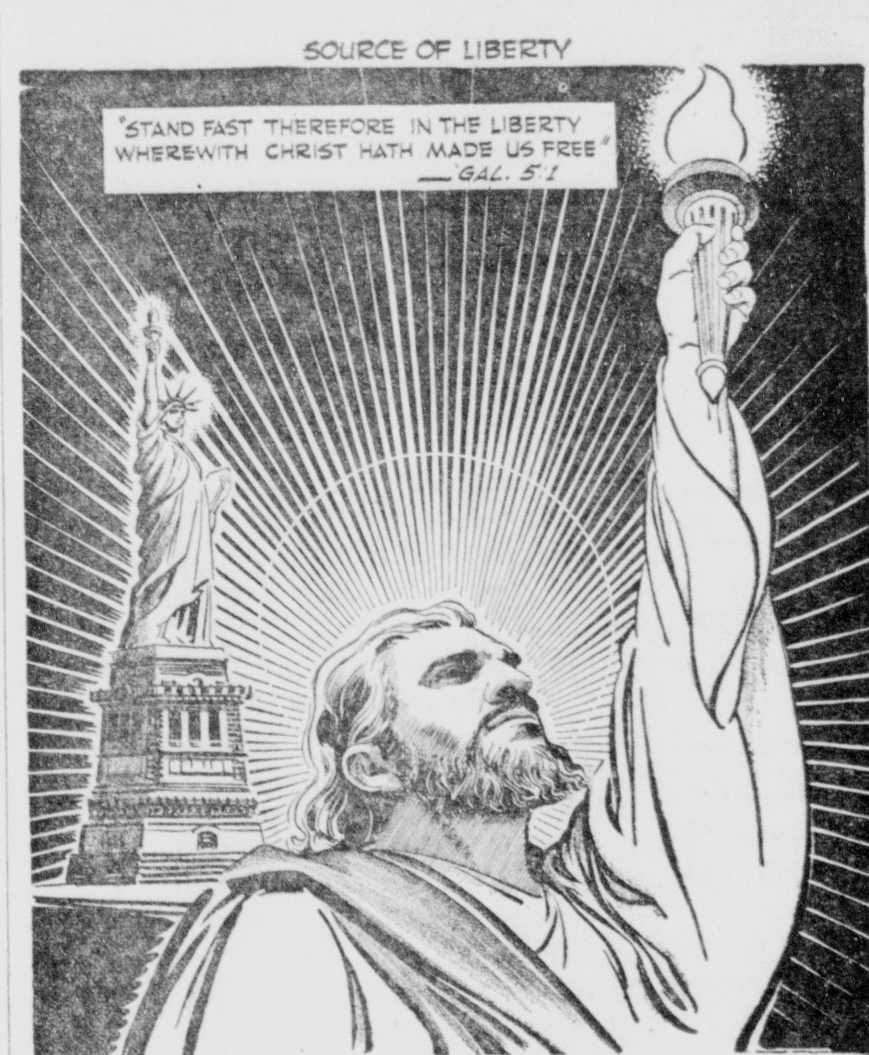

"Thus, when one evaluates America's heritage there is conclusive evidence that this inheritance includes the land, liberty high ideals, the church, the word of God, the Christ of the Cross and God of salvation."

"How best may we protect this heritage and increase it for those who follow us? First, by accepting from our forefathers what they gave us. Second, by sincere appreciation of our inheritance and cherishing it most highly. Third, by passing it on, enhanced and multiplied to our children's children."

Church school classes study the Bible lesson, "Jesus, our Example and Lord."

the church will be used. Collects and prayers for the nation and its leaders will be said by the priest and people.

The parish choir under the direction of Mrs. Howard B. Moore will sing a special anthem for the offertory.

Trinity Lutherans Told To Consider Blessings Enjoyed

The 8:30 and 10:45 a. m. worship services this Sunday in Trinity Lutheran Church will be conducted by intern Donald Kearns. Mr. Kearns' sermon theme will be "Our Blessings Under God" based on Psalm 33:12. In his sermon Mr. Kearns states:

"The 4th of July is an appropriate time for us to pause and consider the many blessings which we have enjoyed through the years as citizens of this nation."

"Biblical and secular history both record many examples of nations which have been blessed while they trusted in God and which have forfeited that blessing by turning their backs on him."

"It is not sufficient for us to print the phrase, 'In God we Trust' on our money. This trust must be firmly planted in the heart of each American. We as citizens and as a nation must place our undivided trust in God and recognize that, 'every good and perfect gift cometh from above.'"

"If we reject God he will also reject us but if we trust in him and love him with all of our heart, mind and soul, we will be richly blessed as a nation, as a congregation, and as individuals."

The junior choir will furnish the music for the early service and music for the late service will be supplied by the senior choir.

Sunday school will be at the regular hour of 9:30 a. m.

Calvary EUB Topic Of Sunday Sermon Concerns Prophet

The service of worship will begin at 9 a. m. Sunday in the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church with the prelude being played by Miss Minnie Wilkerson, church pianist.

The opening portion of the worship service will be directed by Clark Zwayner, assistant Sunday church school superintendent.

The pastor, the Rev. James B. Recob, will speak on a theme appropriate for Independence Day. His topic will be "The Prophet and the Nation". In the sermon the Rev. Mr. Recob will speak concerning the relevance of the message of the prophet Jeremiah to our nation today.

A program for children under twelve is regularly carried on in the educational unit of the church

How Congregation Is Organized Told Church Of Christ

"Congregational Independence" is given as the sermon topic for Sunday, for the church of Christ meeting at 159 E. Main St.

In commenting on the lesson evangelist Charles Cochran says:

"The wisdom of Christ is seen in His arrangement of the organization of the New Testament church. Under the direct supervision of the inspired apostles, the local congregations of the church were organized into independent, self-governing bodies with elders and deacons."

"This system proved to be a great safeguard against wholesale apostasy of the church. If anything happened to one congregation and it proved to be unfaithful in doctrine and practice, other congregations were not led into apostasy by connection with it. However, if the congregations were connected by an inter-congregational organization, and something should go wrong with the governing body and error should creep in, the whole church would be affected and led into apostasy."

"In New Testament days each congregation had a plurality of elders of equal rank and standing. They were referred to as 'elders, pastors, bishops, and overseers.' All of these designations referred to the same office or group of men."

"However, congregations began to select one out of the group of elders as their chairman, who in time began to exercise more authority and arrogated to himself the title of 'bishop,' which should have been given to all alike. Several congregations would to together and appoint one 'bishop' to be over all the others and with more authority. Synods and councils were formulated and new laws and regulations were made in these legislative assemblies."

"This soon advanced from a local arrangement to district, regional, national and finally an international arrangement with one universal bishop, over all the church, residing in the city of Rome. The pattern given by the apostles had been completely set aside. Paul's warning in Acts 20:17-38 and in 2 Thess. 2, of an approaching apostasy, had come to pass as he had said."

simultaneously with the adult program. Mrs. W. C. Shasteen, children's director, is in charge of the program. Nursery facilities are available for small children.

3 Services Listed At First Methodist

The regular mid-Summer communion services will be held at the First Methodist Church Sunday.

There will be three services. The first will be at 7 a. m., and will be shorter than services at 8 a. m. and 10:30 a. m. The later services will be the same, except for the ministry of music.

At the 8 a. m. service, "O Troubled Heart Be Still", by Hamblin, will be sung by Nancy Hughes. At the 10:30 a. m. service, "This Is My Prayer", by Newman, will be sung by a quartet. Members of this group will be: Mrs. Larry Graham, soprano; Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, alto; Gene Cronenwett, tenor; Dr. W. Lloyd Sprouse, bass.

The Rev. Charles D. Reed, recently assigned as new pastor at the church, has chosen for his communion meditations the text, "Greater Love Hath No Man."

Jesus, Our Example and Lord

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 2:40-52

When the Lord Jesus was a little child, dwelling with His parents in Nazareth, He grew "and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon Him."

When Jesus was 12 years old, His father and mother took Him to the Passover in Jerusalem. When they were returning home they missed Him and sought Him among their companions.

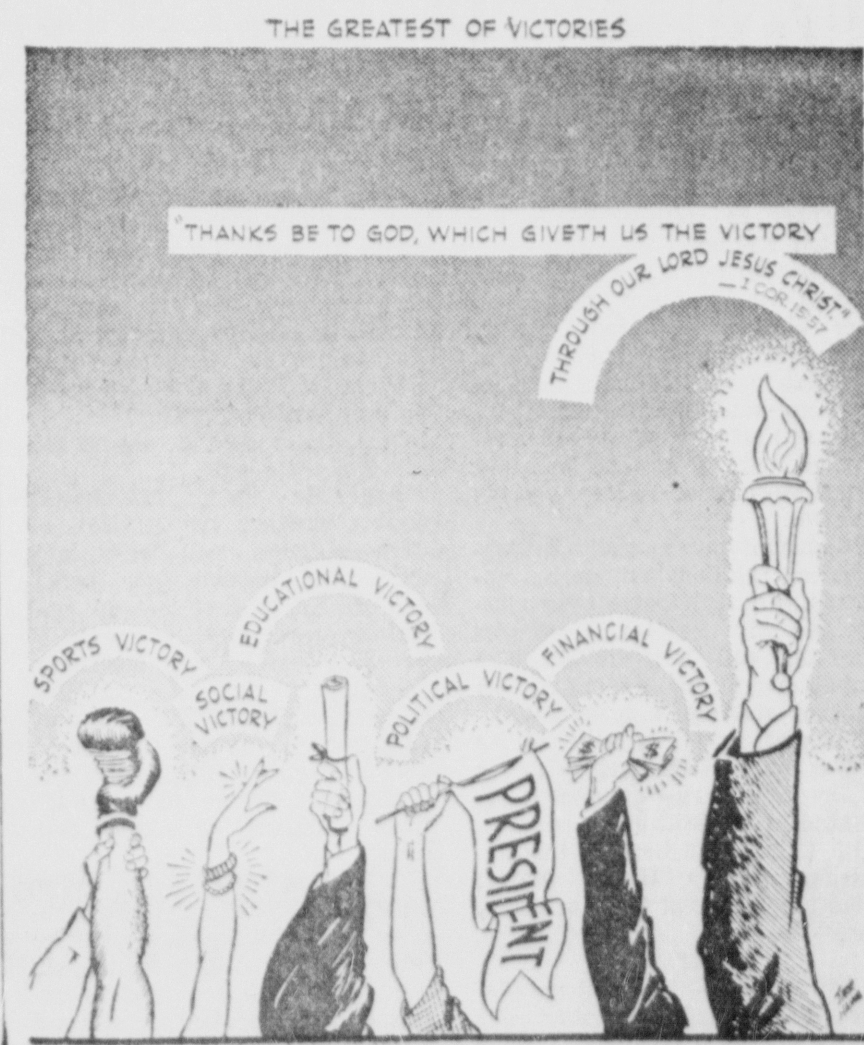

Back in Jerusalem, they found Jesus in the temple with learned doctors, asking and answering questions. His mother chided Him, but He answered that He "was about His Father's business."

Returning to Nazareth, Jesus was an obedient Son to His parents, and as He grew in stature and wisdom, He was "in favor with God and Man."

THE BIRTH OF FREEDOM

THE DECLARATION of Independence approved by Congress 178 years ago was an event of relatively little importance at the time. The United States of America had already formally declared their independence two days before. Five years of war would be needed to accomplish the fact.

So comparatively routine was the adoption of the famous Declaration that members of Congress did not get around to signing it until August 2.

Only in retrospect did the Fourth of July appear to mark a milestone. Why did it? Why should the nation not celebrate July 2, the date when Congress first hurled defiance at the British empire? Why not October 19, the anniversary of Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown?

July 4 marks the official recognition not of independence but of the philosophy of revolution. Useful as was that philosophy in justifying the break with the king, by the time it was being officially applauded with firecrackers and stump speeches it was already warmly disapproved by large numbers of Americans.

The Declaration appealed to the rights of man against the rights of the state. It argued that a higher law under certain circumstances might justify disobedience of the laws of men. Specifically it held that tyranny gave men not only the right but the duty to rebel. That was good medicine for the disease of '76, but it obviously seemed only prudent to try to lock it up afterward.

But the Fourth of July tied the Declaration of Independence to the fact of independence and gave it the great prestige of success. There was an eloquence, furthermore, in Jefferson's great words that would not let go of men's minds.

And finally there was a truth that America and the world continued to need. Freedom ultimately rests on the proposition that the rights of man are superior to the rights of states. Peace ultimately rests on the proposition that all men are created equal—that is, that the common humanity which men share is of more moment than the differences they may develop.

The Declaration of Independence has continued to speak to modern man, preaching liberty and toleration. The Fourth of July has continued to recall not only the birth of a nation but the classic formulation of an idea which gave democracy the strength and flexibility to survive.

Cost of living will be lower by fall, according to one prediction. Turnips will be ripe then.

Baseball managers look forward hopefully to improved attendance this season, but there have been no reports that any of them put in more $2 windows.

WASHINGTON — "Do you think that Churchill and Eden are going to sell out to Red China and leave us holding the bag?" inquires F. G. of Shreveport, La. "What did they tell Eisenhower and Dulles about their Far Eastern plans at the recent White House conference?"

Answer: The White House conference have not yet taken me into their confidence on their China discussions, but it is not difficult to guess the line they followed. British spokesmen and editorialists of recent days, especially since the Geneva gathering, have revealed the sharp and complete disagreement between us on this problem.

ARGUMENT — The British think that the United States is utterly unrealistic and too idealistic on the question of recognizing Communist China and admitting her to membership in the United Nations.

Churchill and Eden argue that, unless the West achieves friendly relations with Mao Tse-tung, China will become a permanent Russian puppet or ally. Through political and trade relations, he thinks that the West can persuade Peiping to break away from Moscow or at least remain neutral.

Churchill notes that British-Chinese relations are on the upgrade. He anticipates even closer ties with Peiping. He thinks that this will help to stabilize conditions in the Far East, and thereby stave off a general war.

Talking practical politics, he points out that the British Labor Party and many Conservatives demand that Britain do business with China, and become less dependent on the United States. Like Ike, he must think of votes, too.

These Days

I listen for days to the warnings over the radio that this year there will be more accidents on the road on the Fourth of July. The public is warned to be careful. The life that is lost may be your own.

What has this Fourth of July become? Is it a lost weekend? Is it a day for chasing from nowhere to nowhere? Is it a pagan Summer festival?

Listen my children and you shall hear of a wondrous story of a brave people, the first colonials to declare their independence from their mother country and to tell the world why. That is why the Fourth of July is celebrated. It was celebrated before anyone ever thought of an automobile; it was celebrated before there was a good road in this country, before there were any state-designated picnic areas to litter with paper and cartons and all the debris of a good time, including broken bottles.

Yes, it was celebrated as a holy birthday, as the day on which a new nation was conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. For it was on this hot day in July, in the city of Philadelphia, dedicated to peace, that a small group of brave men met to issue a proclamation, written principally by Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, philosopher, engineer, statesman, one day to become President of the United States.

It was a most unusual document, for whereas when revolutions are announced, the revolutionists denounce those in power and promise the masses land, food, wealth—whatever it is that men crave—Jefferson set forth a philosophy of politics and of life as the reason for revolution.

I write this in the town of Sandisfield in Massachusetts on a farm that borders on the trail that "Gentleman" Johnny Burgoyne took when he fought Indians; it is on the road where General Henry Knox cut through the forest as he brought the artillery from Ticonderoga to Cambridge; it is a few miles from King Philip's encampment where he laid siege to the settlers in Hartford and Springfield; it is a few miles from where Shay's Rebellion took place on the eve of Washington's Administration.

It is a good place to sit and think about the Fourth of July, of the birth of a nation and of the wondrous preamble which every child of my generation was required to memorize until it remained in the mind like something living that moved and demanded notice. "When in the Course of human events. . ."

Yes, my children, you are told that to memorize is unnecessary, that you need only to know about things and to understand them. But in 1917, I was in Petrograd on that October day when early in the morning the sailors came up the Neva, firing their guns and proclaiming a new day. They would give the peasants and workers land, peace and bread.

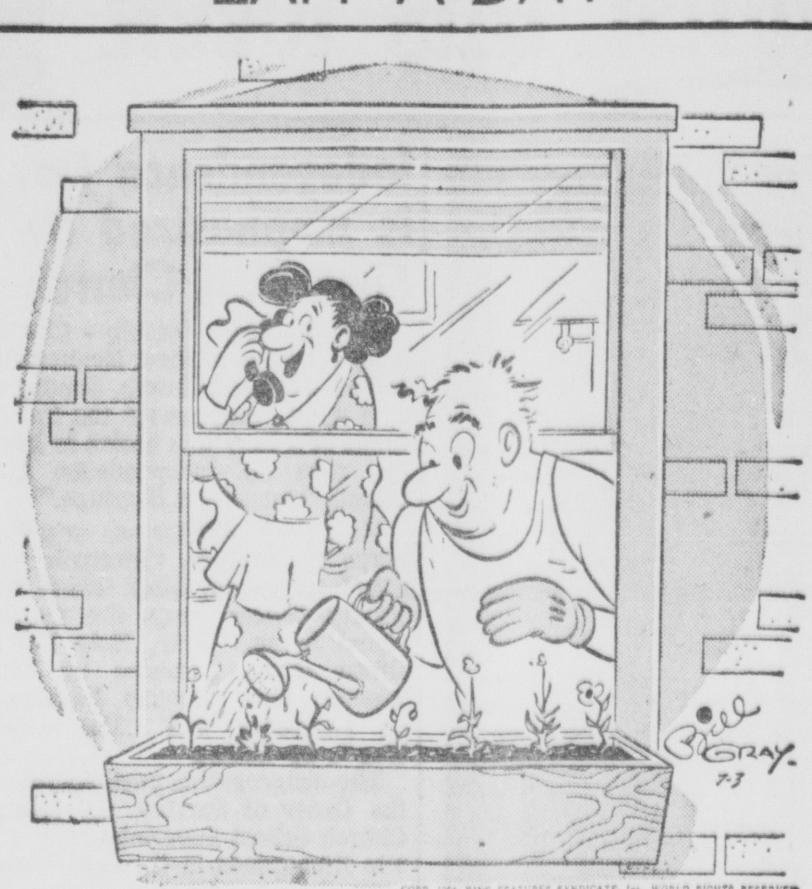

"When in the Course of Human events. . ." shouted at me in Jefferson's words:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

Skin Moles Can Become Forerunners of Cancer

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A HARMLESS mole on the body may undergo changes that can be the forerunner of cancer. The average adult, it is estimated, has during his life time at least 20 moles, or nevi as they are known medically, distributed over his skin surface. About 20 per cent of all skin cancers come from a disease known as malignant melanoma which may develop from these moles.

Usually these moles are pigmented or colored. When a mole shows rapid enlargement, or the color becomes deeper, or it develops a tendency to bleed easily, it may be turning into a cancer or malignancy.

Consult a Physician

When this happens, a person should consult his doctor immediately. He will remove the entire mole and have it examined under a microscope in order to determine whether there are any cancerous changes.

Cancerous changes are more common at the lower part of the body, especially around the feet or the sexual organs. However, they may occur any place in the body.

Moles may vary in appearance from smooth brown spots to elevated, tumor-like projections. The area may be hairy and quite large.

Any change in the mole, of course, should have prompt attention. Just because the mole does not contain any pigmentation or coloration, this does not mean it cannot become malignant. If there is any growth in any mole, colored or not, it should be removed.

If a person has a mole that undergoes endless friction, such as from the rubbing of an undergarment or from work, it also should be removed immediately.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. W. C. E.: Is it true that a gallstone can grow large enough to cause a bowel obstruction?

Answer: Yes, in certain instances, a gallstone may perforate out of the gall bladder into the intestine and, if large enough, may cause a bowel obstruction. This is quite rare, but can be very serious.

SALLY'S SALLIES

"Well, daughter, is that your Fourth-of-July present?"

Nurse Lady

By ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

SYNOPSIS

Norman Brandt and nurse Cynthia Doyle had first met at the scene of an accident near Washington, D. C. He had tried to "date" her, to pay her court, but Cynthia's romantic interest centers about Dr. Sellers with whom she works at the clinic. It was not until the doctor discovered that he had a rival for Nurse Doyle's esteem, that he began to see her as a woman as well as a nurse. He is gravely concerned when Cynthia accepts an invitation to dine with the handsome Mr. Brandt. So much so, that he himself endeavors to date her. Together they attend a party given by Roz Effinger, Brandt, for whom Roz had long ago set her cap, is also present, and he makes no secret of the "torch" he carries for Cyn. When later, Dr. Sellers tells Nurse Doyle that he has something important to discuss with her, she is greatly excited. But that "important something" is out to be plans which he has in mind for enlarging the clinic.

CHAPTER TWELVE

MISS WHITING was fat and forty, so Cynthia should not have minded in the least that she would substitute for her during her vacation. Yet it just went to prove that Walt wanted her away for a while. Maybe Miss Whiting would work out so well that Walt would discover he didn't need Cynthia, after all.

She said, "Well then, since you've made all the arrangements, I believe I will take a vacation—say, starting the first of the month." That was only about another week. She could go home for a week or so. She supposed she should only expect two weeks.

But now Dr. Sellers, as her superior and "boss," said, "Good. And you must take as long a vacation as you like. Three weeks, or even a month."

Cynthia managed a brief, "Well, thank you—thanks a lot." And she meant not just for such generosity, but for dealing her feminine pride such a blow.

What a fool she had been ever to dream she could make Walt fall in love with her. What a silly little fool.

She said, "Since we've finished—and it's late and I'm tired—don't you think we had better go? I'll just grab a cab; I can pick one up at the cab station around the corner."

"Well, now, if you're sure . . ."

"Of course, I'm sure!" Her tone was almost snappish; maybe because she felt close to tears. And by gum, she would die before she'd ever cry in front of him again!

He gave her another long, straight-in-the-eye look; another professional scrutiny. Her eyes were feverishly bright, her color high. Something was wrong with her, he knew. He had been aware of it now for the past few weeks. Which was why he had insisted that she take a vacation. He never could replace Cynthia. Miss Whiting would be a poor substitute.

He walked with her to the corner. It was a beautiful night. The stars seemed closer and brighter than usual, too. It was a beauty that held paths, like the reminder that one day, it, too, would pass.

"I'll see you Friday night at the party," Dr. Sellers reminded his assistant nurse. As though he would not see her in the morning and during all the clinic hours in between. For suddenly he had realized, looking down into her lovely face, as he put a hand on her arm to assist her into the empty cab, that she was like the night, sweet and lovely, as young as spring, and she had said that the time would come when she would be old and gray.

"I suppose so." She almost wished something would happen so there could not be a party Friday night. It would be too complicated—Norman and Walt meeting; Roz trying to impress Norman with her glamour; Nora wrapped in her own world that held only Alan, as she counted the days and hours until his return . . .

"Of course I'll see you in the morning," Walt said. He appeared reluctant to shut the door of the cab, now that Cynthia was safely installed inside. "You don't have to be there quite so early. There aren't any treatments scheduled until ten."

Why this sudden solicitude? But she ought to know it was only because he felt it his duty to safeguard her health. When she was so healthy she was fairly bursting with it.

"Thank you," she said again. Good-bye, Walt. She gave the driver the address. She could have walked that distance, but this was a quicker way to get away from Dr. Sellers—and the quicker the better, for various reasons. The young doctor stood quite a while looking after the departing cab. He stood there until it was out of sight. Then, his head bent in thought, he walked on.

Dr. Eduardo Lameda Arroyo, Venezuelan diplomat, has a birthday today, and so does Buddy Rosar, former big league baseball player.

He was not thinking about the clinic. Or his new plan and dream. He was thinking that whatever was wrong with Cynthia might in some way be connected with that new friend of hers. Walt took it for granted that the other man was not the sort for a fine girl like Cynthia.

He stopped suddenly. He almost said out loud, Good lord! Maybe that's what's ailing her! Maybe she imagines she's in love with that man. Most girls wanted a handsome and wealthy stranger to come riding into their lives in some unexpected way. And most girls, when in love, behaved oddly. That would explain the brightness of her eyes, the color in her cheeks—and the new and different manner of saying things Cynthia had so recently acquired. He had felt, too, that she had not been keenly interested in his idea regarding the clinic, in helping to develop it—there had been something wrong.

He could not let her throw herself away on some ne'er-do-well. He would have to save Cynthia somehow. The vacation might help. It would take her away from the man for a time at least. But if it did not solve the problem, Walt would have to take more drastic means.

He would size this man up on Friday evening. He would keep an eye on his behavior toward Cynthia, watch the two of them together. Then he could diagnose the situation more satisfactorily. Decide now to proceed. But save Cynthia, ease her, ne must. Besides, for some reason not yet analyzed, Dr. Walter Sellers discovered that the whole idea of his assistant nurse being in love with some man, any man at all, was most unpleasant. The idea of her marrying someone was preposterous.

He simply would not have it. He would have to give this much more thought. It seemed almost as important now as his plans for the clinic and raising that money. If necessary, that could be postponed. The problem of Cynthia must come first.

THE BIRTH OF FREEDOM

THE DECLARATION of Independence approved by Congress 178 years ago was an event of relatively little importance at the time. The United States of America had already formally declared their independence two days before. Five years of war would be needed to accomplish the fact.

So comparatively routine was the adoption of the famous Declaration that members of Congress did not get around to signing it until August 2.

Only in retrospect did the Fourth of July appear to mark a milestone. Why did it? Why should the nation not celebrate July 2, the date when Congress first hurled defiance at the British empire? Why not October 19, the anniversary of Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown?

July 4 marks the official recognition not of independence but of the philosophy of revolution. Useful as was that philosophy in justifying the break with the king, by the time it was being officially applauded with firecrackers and stump speeches it was already warmly disapproved by large numbers of Americans.

The Declaration appealed to the rights of man against the rights of the state. It argued that a higher law under certain circumstances might justify disobedience of the laws of men. Specifically it held that tyranny gave men not only the right but the duty to rebel. That was good medicine for the disease of '76, but it obviously seemed only prudent to try to lock it up afterward.

But the Fourth of July tied the Declaration of Independence to the fact of independence and gave it the great prestige of success. There was an eloquence, furthermore, in Jefferson's great words that would not let go of men's minds.

And finally there was a truth that America and the world continued to need. Freedom ultimately rests on the proposition that the rights of man are superior to the rights of states. Peace ultimately rests on the proposition that all men are created equal—that is, that the common humanity which men share is of more moment than the differences they may develop.

The Declaration of Independence has continued to speak to modern man, preaching liberty and toleration. The Fourth of July has continued to recall not only the birth of a nation but the classic formulation of an idea which gave democracy the strength and flexibility to survive.

Cost of living will be lower by fall, according to one prediction. Turnips will be ripe then.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

I listen for days to the warnings over the radio that this year there will be more accidents on the road on the Fourth of July. The public is warned to be careful. The life that is lost may be your own.

What has this Fourth of July become? Is it a lost weekend? Is it a day for chasing from nowhere to nowhere? Is it a pagan Summer festival?

Listen my children and you shall hear of a wondrous story of a brave people, the first colonials to declare their independence from their mother country and to tell the world why. That is why the Fourth of July is celebrated. It was celebrated before anyone ever thought of an automobile; it was celebrated before there was a good road in this country, before there were any state-designated picnic areas to litter with paper and cartons and all the debris of a good time, including broken bottles.

Yes, it was celebrated as a holy birthday, as the day on which a new nation was conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. For it was on this hot day in July, in the city of Philadelphia, dedicated to peace, that a small group of brave men met to issue a proclamation, written principally by Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, philosopher, engineer, statesman, one day to become President of the United States.

It was a most unusual document, for whereas when revolutions are announced, the revolutionists denounce those in power and promise the masses land, food, wealth—whatever it is that men crave—Jefferson set forth a philosophy of politics and of life as the reason for revolution.

I write this in the town of Sandisfield in Massachusetts on a farm that borders on the trail that "Gentleman" Johnny Burgoyne took when he fought Indians; it is on the road where General Henry Knox cut through the forest as he brought the artillery from Ticonderoga to Cambridge; it is a few miles from King Philip's encampment where he laid siege to the settlers in Hartford and Springfield; it is a few miles from where Shay's Rebellion took place on the eve of Washington's Administration.

It is a good place to sit and think about the Fourth of July, of the birth of a nation and of the wondrous preamble which every child of my generation was required to memorize until it remained in the mind like something living that moved and demanded notice. "When in the Course of human events..."

Yes, my children, you are told that to memorize is unnecessary, that you need only to know about things and to understand them. But in 1917, I was in Petrograd on that October day when early in the morning the sailors came up the Neva, firing their guns and proclaiming a new day. They would give the peasants and workers land, peace and bread.

"When in the Course of Human events..." shouted at me in Jefferson's words:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

Skin Moles Can Become Forerunners of Cancer

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A HARMLESS mole on the body may undergo changes that can be the forerunner of cancer. The average adult, it is estimated, has during his life time at least 20 moles, or nevi as they are known medically, distributed over his skin surface. About 20 per cent of all skin cancers come from a disease known as malignant melanoma which may develop from these moles.

Usually these moles are pigmented or colored. When a mole shows rapid enlargement, or the color becomes deeper, or it develops a tendency to bleed easily, it may be turning into a cancer or malignancy.

Consult a Physician

When this happens, a person should consult his doctor immediately. He will remove the entire mole and have it examined under a microscope in order to determine whether there are any cancerous changes.

Cancerous changes are more common at the lower part of the body, especially around the feet or the sexual organs. However, they may occur any place in the body.

Moles may vary in appearance from smooth brown spots to elevated, tumor-like projections. The area may be hairy and quite large.

Any change in the mole, of course, should have prompt attention. Just because the mole does not contain any pigmentation or coloration, this does not mean it cannot become malignant. If there is any growth in any mole, colored or not, it should be removed.

If a person has a mole that undergoes endless friction, such as from the rubbing of an undergarment or from work, it also should be removed immediately.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. W. C. E. Is it true that a gallstone can grow large enough to cause a bowel obstruction?

Answer: Yes, in certain instances, a gallstone may perforate out of the gall bladder into the intestine and, if large enough, may cause a bowel obstruction. This is quite rare, but can be very serious.

SALLY'S SALLIES

"Well, daughter, is that your Fourth-of-July present?"

Nurse Lady

Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Copyright, 1953, by Adelaide Humphries

SYNOPSIS
Norman Brandt and nurse Cynthia Doyle had first met at the scene of an accident near Washington, D. C. He'd tried to "date" her, to pay her court, but Cynthia's romantic interest centers about Dr. Sellers with whom she works at the clinic. It was not until the doctor discovered that he had a rival for Nurse Doyle's esteem, that he began to see her as a woman as well as a nurse. He is gravely concerned when Cynthia accepts an invitation to dine with the handsome Mr. Brandt. So much so, that he himself, endeavors to date her. Together they attend a party given by Dr. Eifinger. Brandt, for whom Cynthia had long ago set her cap, is also present, and he makes no secret of the "torch" he carries for Cyn. When later, Dr. Sellers tells Nurse Doyle that he has something important to discuss with her, she is greatly excited. But that "important something" turns out to be plans which he has in mind for enlarging the clinic.

CHAPTER TWELVE

MISS WHITING was fat and forty, so Cynthia should not have minded in the least that she would substitute for her during her vacation. Yet it just went to prove that Walt wanted her away for a while. Maybe Miss Whitening would work out so well that Walt would discover he didn't need Cynthia, after all.

She said, "Well then, since you've made all the arrangements, I believe I will take a vacation, say, starting the first of the month." That was only about another week. She could go home for a week or so. She supposed she should only expect two weeks.

But now Dr. Sellers, as her superior and "boss," said, "Good. And you must take as long a vacation as you like. Three weeks, or even a month."

Cynthia managed a brief, "Well, thank you—thanks a lot." And she meant not just for such generosity, but for dealing her feminine pride such a blow.

What a fool she had been ever to dream she could make Walt fall in love with her. What a silly little fool.

She said, "Since we've finished—and it's late and I'm tired—don't you think we had better go? I'll just grab a cab. I can pick one up at the cab station around the corner."

"Well, now, if you're sure..."

"Of course, I'm sure!" Her tone was almost snappish; maybe because she felt close to tears. And by gum, she would die before she'd ever cry in front of him again!

He gave her another long, Copyright, 1953, by Adelaide Humphries. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

straight-in-the-eye look; another professional scrutiny. Her eyes were feverishly bright, her color high. Something was wrong with her, he knew. He had been aware of it now for the past few weeks. Which was why he had insisted that she take a vacation. He never could replace Cynthia. Miss Whitening would be a poor substitute.

He walked with her to the corner. It was a beautiful night. The neighborhood might be run-down and seedy, but even the unpainted, tumbled-down houses, the refuse and garbage cans on the curb, took on a soft glow. It must have been the touch of spring in the air. The stars seemed closer and brighter than usual, too. It was a beauty that held paths, like the reminder that one day, it, too, would pass.

"I'll see you Friday night at the party," Dr. Sellers reminded his assistant nurse. As though he would not see her in the morning and during all the clinic hours in between. For suddenly he had realized, looking down into her lovely face, as he put a hand on her arm to assist her into the empty cab, that she was like the night, sweet and lovely, as young as spring, and she had said that the time would come when she would be old and gray.

"I suppose so." She almost wished something would happen so there could not be a party Friday night. It would be too complicated—Norman and Walt meeting; Roz trying to impress Norman with her glamour; Nora wrapped in her own world that held only Alan, as she counted the days and hours until his return...

"Of course I'll see you in the morning," Walt said. He appeared reluctant to shut the door of the cab, now that Cynthia was safely installed inside. "You don't have to be there quite so early. There aren't any treatments scheduled until ten."

Why this sudden solicitude? But she ought to know it was only because he felt it his duty to safeguard her health. When she was so healthy she was fairly bursting with it.

"Thank you," she said again. Goodby, Walt. She gave the driver the address. She could have walked that distance, but this was a quicker way to get away from Dr. Sellers—and the quicker the better, for various reasons. The young doctor stood quite a while looking after the departing cab. He stood there until it was out of sight. Then, his head bent in thought, he walked on.

He was not thinking about the clinic. Or his new plan and dream. He was thinking that whatever was wrong with Cynthia might in some way be connected with that new friend of hers, Walt took it for granted that the other man was not the sort for a fine girl like Cynthia.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

Editor's Note: Every Saturday, Mr. Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent to him at 7008 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON — "Do you think that Churchill and Eden are going to sell out to Red China and leave us holding the bag?" inquires F. G. of Shreveport, La. "What did they tell Eisenhower and Dulles about their Far Eastern plans at the recent White House conference?"

Answer: The White House conference has not yet taken me into their confidence on their China discussions, but it is not difficult to guess the line they followed. British spokesmen and editorialists of recent days, especially since the Geneva gathering, have revealed the sharp and complete disagreement between us and this country.

ARGUMENT — The British think that the United States is utterly unrealistic and too ideal-

DISTRUST — Churchill recalls, too, that the British are old hands at world diplomacy. Britain was a great power for centuries before the United States achieved that status. She remained so by veering with the political winds and circumstances.

Churchill and Eden argue that, unless the West achieves friendlier relations with Mao Tse-tung, China will become a permanent Russian puppet or ally. Through political and trade relations, he thinks that the West can persuade Peiping to break away from Moscow or at least remain neutral.

Churchill notes that British-Chinese relations are on the upgrade. He anticipates even closer ties with Peiping. He thinks that this will help to stabilize conditions in the Far East, and thereby stave off a general war. Talking practical politics, he points out that the British Labor Party and many Conservatives demand that Britain do business with China, and become less dependent on the United States. Like Ike, he must think of votes, too.

CHIANG — Politically, Ike replies to Churchill that it would be fatal for any Administration to join hands with Mao and to desert Chiang Kai-shek in view of the 140,000 Americans killed or wounded by the Chinese Communists in Korea.

As between the U. S. and China, Churchill will stick with us on basic matters, such as a World War III. But in the meantime, he will try to do business with Mao. Many may regard that as a "sellout," as F. G. suggests.

MISFITS — "Has Eisenhower gotten rid of the Democratic misfits and incompetents in the government?" asks M. R. of Sandusky, O.

Answer: No. In the first place, so many federal officials were blanketed under Civil Service during the last 20 years that the old-fashioned system of enjoying the "spoils" has gone out of date.

Moreover, from their long experience, the so-called "misfits and incompetents" have come to know their jobs better than newcomers would. In short, it is impossible to throw out opposition jobholders these days without crippling government operations.

Finally, few of Ike's top aides and job dispensers are politically minded.

Girl Scouts Attend Summer Activities At Scout Lodge

'Sunny' Rinehart Directs Day Camp

Highlight of Summer activities for Circleville and Pickaway County Girl Scouts was a program of skits presented by the five camp units Friday afternoon.

Parents and friends of the scouts were invited guests for the program, which closed a four-day session of daycamp activities at Girl Scout Lodge, Goldcliff Park.

A total of 98 Brownie and Intermediate Scouts attended the sessions, which were held from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. Girls of Troops 6, 12, 14, 15, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23 and 24 took part in the program.

The theme of the program directed by Mrs. Foster "Sunny" Rinehart of Chillicothe, was a gypsy camp. Sessions opened with a flag raising ceremony and closed with the flag lowering and a Girl Scout friendship circle.

During the handicraft sessions, the girls made gypsy skirts and scarves and painted earrings, bracelets and beads. Tambourines and jingle clogs also were made by the scouts. Gypsy songs were learned and a singing game in Spanish was featured.

Clyde King, superintendent of Mound City National Monument at Chillicothe, conducted two nature walks during the Tuesday sessions. He addressed the Girl Scouts on wild flowers and showed them how to recognize a number of common plants. The Brownie scouts were given instructions on trees and insects viewed on the tour.

A period of swimming was enjoyed each day during the afternoon from 1:30 to 2:45.

Mrs. Rinehart was assisted by a camp staff including Mrs. Walter Heine, Mrs. Ruth Thompson, Miss Doris Schreiner, Miss Sue Brown, Mrs. Carle Snider and Mrs. Herbert Southward.

Senior camp aides included Connie Courtright, Carole Peters, Roberta Hardin, Elizabeth Sark, Mary Jo Bowers, Nancy Miller, Jane Craig, Jean Lindsey, Judy Hosler, Carolyn Stout, Kaye Morrison, Judy Anderson, Jeanette West, Verna Lawson, Carole Reed, Starr Rinehart, Beverly Riegel, Judy Bowers and Betty Olson.

Adult helpers who assisted the staff were: Mrs. William Starkey, Mrs. Edwin Swayer, Mrs. Glenn Hines, Mrs. C. D. Mumaw, Mrs. Frank Marion, Mrs. Cooke Metzger and Mrs. William J. Wilson.

Mrs. Eddie Pritchard, Mrs. Robert Dick, Mrs. Francis Cook, Mrs. James Callahan, Mrs. Earl Boyer, Mrs. Eleanor Dawson, Mrs. Robert Bartholomew, Mrs. Stephen Cook and Mrs. Ned Griner.

Breakfast in a Salad Bowl

Breakfasts need to be picture-pretty to tempt lackadaisical appetites that often go with summertime. But that's really no trick at all—what with the feast-your-eyes beauty of the season's fruit, the intriguing variety of shapes, textures, and flavors of ready-to-eat cold cereals, and the endless possibilities of serving them up!

Give your salad bowl double duty and let it house a help-yourself breakfast. Arrange fresh fruits, such as strawberries and sliced bananas, in the center of the bowl, with a cold cereal on each side—one day neat little doughnut-shapes of ready-to-eat cereal and shredded wheat cut in "slices." Another morning, try a mixture of cereals tossed together with salad fork and spoon, as you would mixed greens—a good way to use up near-empty packages. Top with fresh fruit if you like. Have a tall pitcher of icy-cold milk, cereal or individual salad bowls, and salad servers alongside. With the toaster, sliced bread and butter, and trays nearby, this breakfast is easy-getting and easy-eating, time-saving and fuel-saving—no small items anytime.

Summertime breakfasting is just as important as when winter winds blow, often more so! Hiking, gardening, swimming, golfing, and many another outdoor hobby are added to ordinary work and play hours. It makes good sense to eat a breakfast that supplies ¼ to ½ of daily food needs, which the basic breakfast of fruit or fruit juice, cereal and milk, bread and butter does so pleasantly. Besides, every day is a growing day for children, and maintenance for the adult body knows no season. It's smart to eat breakfast!

Reception Is Held To Honor Pastor Of Methodist Church

The social rooms of First Methodist church were the setting Friday evening for a reception honoring the new minister, The Rev. Charles D. Reed, Mrs. Reed and their children, Linda, Harold and Becky.

The rooms were decorated for the affair with bowls of snap dragons and baby breath. Mrs. Gene Cronenwett presented violin selections during the evening. She was accompanied by Mrs. Irvin Leist at the piano.

Guests were invited to the dining room for refreshments. The lace-covered table was centered with an arrangement of pink and white snap dragons and baby breath in a large crystal bowl. Four tall white tapers in silver holders and crystal punch bowls completed the setting.

Miss Marie L. Hamilton, Mrs. Vaden Couch, Mrs. Carl Johnson and Mrs. Roliff Wolford presided at the punch bowls. Miss Carrie Johnson and Mrs. George Walker were in charge of registration.

The refreshment committee included Mrs. William Cook, Mrs. Tom Bennett, Mrs. Richard Plum, Mrs. Leonard Lytle, Mrs. Donald Pontious, Mrs. Clark McFarland and Mrs. Wolford.

Girl Scouts Attend Summer Activities At Scout Lodge

'Sunny' Rinehart Directs Day Camp

Highlight of Summer activities for Circleville and Pickaway County Girl Scouts was a program of skits presented by the five camp units Friday afternoon.

Parents and friends of the scouts were invited guests for the program, which closed a four-day session of daycamp activities at Girl Scout Lodge, Goldcliff Park.

A total of 98 Brownie and Intermediate Scouts attended the sessions, which were held from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. Girls of Troops 6, 12, 14, 15, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23 and 25 took part in the program.

The theme of the program directed by Mrs. Foster "Sunny" Rinehart of Chillicothe, was a gypsy camp. Sessions opened with a flag raising ceremony and closed with the flag lowering and a Girl Scout friendship circle.

During the handicraft sessions, the girls made gypsy skirts and scarves and painted earrings, bracelets and beads. Tambourines and jingle clogs also were made by the scouts. Gypsy songs were learned and a singing game in Spanish was featured.

Clyde King, superintendent of Mount City National Monument at Chillicothe, conducted two nature walks during the Tuesday sessions. He addressed the Girl Scouts on wild flowers and showed them how to recognize a number of common plants. The Brownie scouts were given instructions on trees and insects viewed on the tour.

A period of swimming was enjoyed each day during the afternoon from 1:30 to 4:45.

Mrs. Rinehart was assisted by a camp staff including Mrs. Walter Heine, Mrs. Ruth Thompson, Miss Doris Schreiner, Miss Sue Brown, Mrs. Carl Snider and Mrs. Herbert Southward.

Senior camp aides included Connie Courtwright, Carole Peters, Roberta Hardin, Elizabeth Sark, Mary Jo Bowers, Nancy Miller, Jane Craig, Jean Lindsey, Judy Hosler, Carolyn Stout, Kaye Morrison, Judy Anderson, Jeanette West, Verna Lawson, Carole Reed, Starr Rinehart, Beverly Riegel, Judy Bowers and Betty Olson.

Summer Play At Lewis Park Closed Monday

'Little Mo' Hot Favorite At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The hardest person to find around Wimbledon's ivy-covered courts today was someone ready to give Louise Brough a fighting chance of upsetting Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly in the women's singles of the All-England Championships.

Miss Connolly, seeking her third crown in three years, is the hottest favorite to win the girl's title since Helen Wills Moody.

Little Mo from San Diego, Calif., has dropped only two sets since she hit the famed center court in 1952 and those were in her first season at Wimbledon. This year, like last, she has blasted her way past everyone without dropping more than a handful of games.

The all-California final today between Miss Connolly and Miss Brough from Beverly Hills, can scarcely equal yesterday's nerve-rattling men's singles final between Jaroslav Drobny, 32-year-old exile-Czech now living in Egypt, and Australia's 19-year-old Ken Rosewall. Drobny, who waited 16 long years to win the Wimbledon title, defeated Rosewall 13-11, 4-6, 6-2, 9-7.

It will be virtually all-American Day today with seven Americans and three Australians battling it out in the finals.

Australian's Rex Hartwig and Mervyn Rose play Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and Tony Trabert of Cincinnati in the men's doubles while Rosewall and Mrs. Margaret DuPont of Wilmington, Del. meet Seixas and Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla. in the mixed doubles. In the women's doubles Miss Hart and Shirley Fry of Akron, winners the last three years, take on Miss Brough and Mrs. DuPont.

First Round Ends In 2 Leagues As Hot Races Go On In Others

First round play in two leagues of "Kid's Baseball" ended this week. In the Mosquito League Rotary came out on top with five wins and no losses. Elks were close behind with four wins and a single defeat.

In the Little League, Elks went through four games without a loss. Kiwanis was right on their heels with one defeat and three wins.

However, another week remains in the other leagues. In the Pony League, General Electric has virtually sewn up the first half title. They have five wins and no defeats with only one more game to play. Even if they lose this one Wednesday to the Jaycees, second place Elks can't catch them. Elks have already lost two contests and have two more to play.

County and City Softball contestants will find next week a rough one. In Softball, the two leaders, General Electric and Yellow Bud clash head-on Monday at 8 p. m. Although neither has been defeated, GE owns three victories while Yellow Bud has two. And Yellow Bud can take over because they play twice next week while GE has but one game.

A SIMILAR situation exists in the County division. But the roles are reversed. Ashville, Irwins and General Electric are tied but it's Ashville Irwins with the three wins and GE with two. And it's Ashville which gets to play twice. Although the two leaders don't meet head on Ashville seems to have the advantage at the present time.

Complete standings follow:

FINAL FIRST HALF MOSQUITO LEAGUE STANDINGS

Redlegs Drop Into Familiar Sixth Place

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, who had a good chance to be in the first division today, dropped both ends of a double-header to Milwaukee last night and skidded to familiar sixth place.

The Braves used four home runs to fashion an 11-4 victory in the first game and squeezed all they could out of the three-hit pitching of Fred Baczewski for a 2-1 triumph in the nightcap.

Gus Bell, Cincinnati slugger, went without a safety in eight trips to the plate. The Reds could collect only four hits in the second game off big Gene Conley, who now has a 6-3 record.

Again it was the home run, or rather five of them, which spelled defeat for the Reds, who have given up more homers than any other club in the National League. The quintet boosted the mark to 82 for the season.

Joe Adcock started the Braves' home run parade in the fourth inning of the opener. Hank Aaron and Eddie Matthews hit back-to-back clouts in the seventh and Matthews came back in the next inning to slam another, his 16th of the year. Milwaukee scored nine runs in the seventh and eighth.

Up till then, Corky Valentine, the losing pitcher, had limited the Braves to one run besides Adcock's contribution. Valentine was chased in the seventh, reliever Joe Nuxhall did not have the stuff and Jackie Collum finished.

The Braves broke the 0-0 deadlock in the fourth frame of the second game on Johnny Logan's walk and Aaron's double. Del Crandall brought in what proved to be the winning run in the next inning with a solid homer.

Haas And Mayer Leading Tourney

DETROIT (AP)—Fred Haas of New Orleans and Del Mayer of St. Petersburg, shot sub-par golf and led a field of 72 players into today's third round of the Motor City Open.

Haas carded a four under par 67 in yesterday's second round for a 71-67-138 total.

Mayer followed with a five under par 66—the best round of the tournament—and posted a 72-66-138. Their shot-making over the par 71 Meadowbrook Country Club course gave them a two-stroke lead over other professionals.

Rev. Bob Richards Behind In Test

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Although he trailed in third place at the halfway mark, the Rev. Bob Richards was expected to steam ahead today and win his second National A. A. U. decathlon.

"I think I'll still win," said the 28-year-old Olympic pole vaulting champion after he wound up 289 points behind rangy Jim Podoley of Central Michigan College and 112 astern of 19-year-old Aubrey Lewis of the Kearny (N.J.) A. C., last night.

Richards, winner in '51 holds a trump ace for the windup—the pole vault. He collected 1,039 points for his specialty last year with a leap of 14 feet, 8 inches.

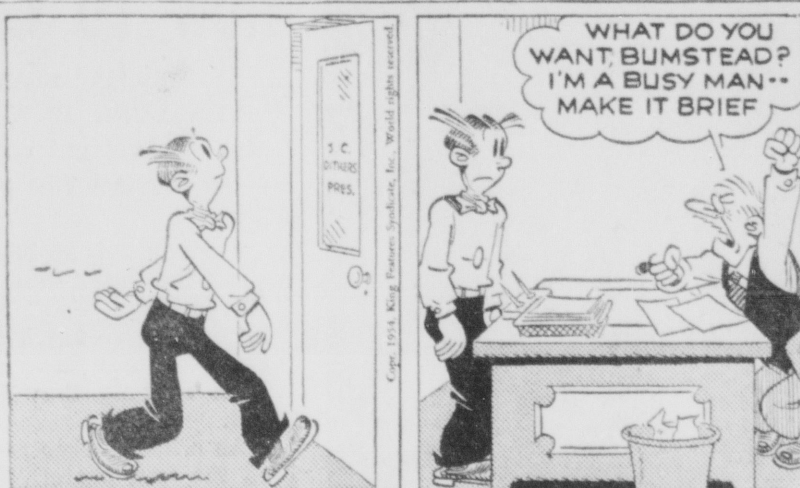

Persley Favored Over Frenchman

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Clever Art Persley, seeking to get back in the running for a lightweight title shot, is a 1-2 favorite to make France's Hoacine Khalil his fifth straight victim tonight when they clash in a 10-round television bout.

The 9 p. m. EST, scrap will be held in the Convention Hall ballroom with ABC telecasting the show coast to coast.

Persley, of Red Cross, La., has won four in a row since he dropped a ten rounder to Cuba's Orlando Zuleta 11 months ago. Khalil grabbed the spotlight May 17 when he upset featherweight champion Sandy Saddler in a TV ten rounder for his first U. S. triumph.

'Little Mo' Hot Favorite At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The hardest person to find around Wimbledon's ivy-covered courts today was someone ready to give Louise Brough a fighting chance of upsetting Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly in the women's singles of the All-England Championships.

Miss Connolly and Miss Brough from Beverly Hills, can scarcely equal yesterday's nerve-rattling men's singles final between Jaroslav Drobny, 32-year-old ex-Czech now living in Egypt, and Australia's 19-year-old Ken Rosewall. Drobny, who waited 16 long years to win the Wimbledon title, defeated Rosewall 13-11, 4-6, 6-2, 9-7.

Rotary Told How Spiritual Values Are Seen In True Light

Rev. Bennett's Talk Based On Own Reflections

He Stresses Priest Can Compare As Former Layman

Life as a priest impresses upon a man the greater need of spiritual values over physical needs, the Rev. Jack Bennett, pastor of St. Philip's Episcopal Church, told this week's meeting of the Circleville Rotary Club.

The Rev. Mr. Bennett, main speaker at the club's luncheon gathering, based his talk on the reflections that come to a clergyman as he looks back upon his way of thinking and acting as a layman. In this way, he explained, a priest has the advantageous position of making comparisons and reaching conclusions beyond the reach of those who are not of the clergy.

Such thinking emphasizes the "dual existence" of the individual, the Rev. Mr. Bennett pointed out, and leads to recognition of "religion and things of the spirit" as the true guiding force in life. The Rev. Mr. Bennett divided his talk into four sections, which are summarized here by the speaker as follows:

INTRODUCTION: People frequently say to me, "If I were a Priest, . . ." From such remarks sometimes is derived useful advice and suggestion.

Therefore, today I shall preface my words with the remark, "If I were a layman, . . ." keeping in mind that I have the advantage of having been a layman, whereas the people who usually speak to me in such vein have never been Priests.

BODY: If I were a layman, I should take time out very often for some thinking about myself. What am I doing in this world? Why am I here? What sort of creature am I? Such thinking leads to the conclusion that we live a dual existence. We are both physical and spiritual. The physical part of us demands food, shelter, clothing and a host of other material things for growth and satisfaction. But, we are also spiritual beings with souls which make us different from the rest of God's creatures. We have spiritual selves which require spiritual nourishment and care for growth and progress.

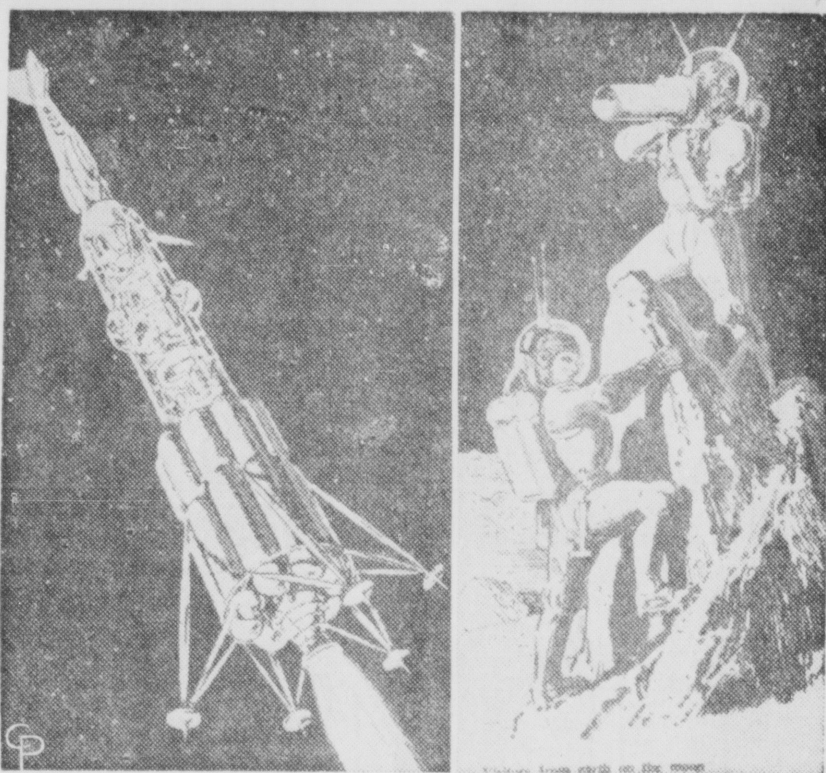

This position of ours creates a problem for us. Each part of our self seems opposed to the other, and yet both exist together in one being. Men have tried various methods of solution. Some have stressed the satisfaction of the physical needs whereas others have sought the satisfaction of only the spiritual self. Both have been equally wrong. Each has its essential part to play in man's existence.

We are in much the same position as a bicycle. Everyone knows what happens to a bicycle if one of the wheels comes off. Let us say that the front wheel represents the physical self of man whereas the rear wheel represents the spiritual self. Note that it is the rear wheel which carries most of the weight. Upon our spiritual self largely depends our happiness, peace, etc.

Now, with bicycles, the problem of getting the two wheels to work together is simple. Each has its function in relation to the other. However, with man, the two selves seem to constantly oppose each other. Therefore, it is man's problem to work out a harmonization of his two selves so that he will be what the psychologist calls a "well integrated personality".

Man seems to have little trouble caring for his physical self. It is always with him. The body is always present and its needs are felt constantly. Therefore man spends most of his time in satisfying these needs by his earning a living, etc. However, as we've shown in the illustration his happiness depends on his spiritual self.

Consider how some people are happy with very little of the "things" which give physical ease and satisfaction. But the soul seems far away, something that the clergy are always talking about but with little meaning for most laymen. So they put off its needs until the "last things" come along.

THE SOLUTION:

The solution to this problem of man's nature is not as hopeless as it sounds. It lies in bringing his two selves to a working agreement.

Brother Lawrence, a monk of the Middle Ages solved it this way. He found himself serving the monastery as a cook in the kitchen, a far cry from the spiritual life he expected to live in a religious order. After much thought concerning his work, he decided that it was possible for man to do the lowliest task as if for the glory of God. "Whatsoever thou doest, do for the glory of God" became his ruling concept.

Since God was a God of purpose and plan, whatever task helped his creatures, or maintained order in His universe, was to be done to His glory. Brother Lawrence came to the conclusion that even such a small thing as picking up a fallen leaf could be done to the glory of God.

Thus one man brought his spiritual self into his physical work. Any layman can do as much. The wholesale grocer can perform his work to provide others with food and therefore to God's glory instead of the satisfaction of his own wants. The doctor can heal the sick with similar thoughts for his patients instead of his own welfare.

CONCLUSION:

If I were a layman, therefore, I would work out some such harmony of my seemingly dual existence. Then religion and things of the spirit, instead of my physical needs, would begin to be the supporting factor of my life. Then the mere fact that I must earn a living would not exclude the growth of my spiritual self. Then I should be a whole man. I should be God's man as He intended me to be when first He gave me life.

'Ways And Means' Group Tells How To Cure Touching Subject

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—What can the poor working girl do to protect herself against "the overfriendly boss?"

I thought this problem went out about the time "Bessie, the Sewing Machine Girl" was a big hit, but apparently it didn't. Now Congress may have to consider it in revising the Taft-Hartley Act.

An office worker recently raised the question of "how to discourage the office boss from conveniently placing his hands on a girl's shoulders, arms or back while discussing business matters."

Admitting that it was a touchy subject and that often such gestures by the boss are completely friendly and an attempt to express their appreciation for work well done, the writer added, however:

"The majority of girls are embarrassed and uncomfortable when it occurs. None enjoys it and it results more often in strained employer-employee relationship than in a friendly businesslike one."

At a drugstore counter where a number of girls from several offices crunched down their malted milk lunches, I made an informal poll on what they thought about this problem.

Their reaction was mixed—and entirely feminine. Most of them said their own particular boss was more of a mouse than a wolf.

"It's the junior executives who act like office juvenile delinquents today," said one. "Every once in a while you meet one whose idea of exercise is to ask you to stay late and then chase you ten laps around the water cooler."

"My boss does pinch me every once in a while," said a plump young file clerk, blushing. "But he doesn't mean anything by it. He's the fatherly type. He says he just wants to be sure that I'm not getting undernourished."

"When my boss puts his arm on my shoulder, it's anything but love," remarked a stenographer. "He only does it after one of those four-martini, three-hour business luncheons, and he just wants something to lean on until he can reach his swivel chair."

"Heavens, I wish my boss or anybody else would put his arm around me," said a secretary. "After 25 years behind the same old hot typewriter, I've forgotten what it feels like."

"I wish my boss would thaw out more," admitted another stenographer. "After all if he were trying to put his arm around me, he'd shut up about what a lousy speller I am."

Ths girls went into a huddle when I asked them what was the best way to curb an employer who really did insist on getting overfriendly on company time.

"Every time he reached for you," suggested one, "just ask him for a raise. Boy, his arm will flop down as if you'd hit it with a crowbar."

"Well, in the old days I guess a working girl always kept a hatpin handy," said a second. "If my boss bothered me, you know what I'd do? I'd sew half a dozen thumbtacks in the waist and shoulders of my dress—with the points sticking out. Imagine how he'd look after he pawed over sharp thumbtacks."

The other girls laughed merrily at the mental picture of the boss winning his office purple heart the hard way. But they all agreed the cynical, middle-aged spinster secretary had an even better answer.

"The best way for a girl to cure an overfriendly boss is to marry him," she said, acidly. "That seems to cool any man down."

Logan Judge Eyes New Trial Plea

LOGAN (AP)—Common Pleas Judge Harley Meyer has taken under advisement a motion for a new trial made by attorneys for Benjamin Meyer, 25, convicted of first-degree murder.

Meyer was found guilty, without recommendation of mercy, in the slaying of his wife, Velvia.

His attorneys asked for a new trial on grounds one of the jurors had not heeded the admonition of the court not to talk about the case to outsiders. Counsel also argued there were errors in the court's charge to the jury.

A heritage we must ever protect

INDEPENDENCE did not come cheaply . . . and history proves that it cannot be held without determination, courage, diligence and strength. Freedom is a priceless heritage that we must ever protect . . . for freedom alone can guarantee the American way of life with all its precious liberties and privileges. So let us remember today the Declaration of Independence and the character, courage and vision of those who signed it . . . as we rededicate ourselves to the principles it set forth and to their protection at all times.

Rotary Told How Spiritual Values Are Seen In True Light

Rev. Bennett's Talk Based On Own Reflections

He Stresses Priest Can Compare As Former Layman

Life as a priest impresses upon a man the greater need of spiritual values over physical needs, the Rev. Jack Bennett, pastor of St. Philip's Episcopal Church, told this week's meeting of the Circleville Rotary Club.

The Rev. Mr. Bennett, main speaker at the club's luncheon gathering, based his talk on the reflections that come to a clergyman as he looks back upon his way of thinking and acting as a layman. In this way, he explained, a priest has the advantageous position of making comparisons and reaching conclusions beyond the reach of those who are not of the clergy.

Such thinking emphasizes the "dual existence" of the individual, the Rev. Mr. Bennett pointed out, and leads to recognition of "religion and things of the spirit" as the true guiding force in life. The Rev. Mr. Bennett divided his talk into four sections, which are summarized here by the speaker as follows:

INTRODUCTION:

People frequently say to me, "If I were a Priest. . . ." From such remarks sometimes is derived useful advice and suggestion.

Therefore, today I shall preface my words with the remark, "If I were a layman. . . ." keeping in mind that I have the advantage of having been a layman, whereas the people who usually speak to me in such vein have never been Priests.

BODY:

If I were a layman, I should take time out very often for some thinking about myself. What am I doing in this world? Why am I here? What sort of creature am I?

Such thinking leads to the conclusion that we live a dual existence. We are both physical and spiritual. The physical part of us demands food, shelter, clothing and a host of other material things for growth and satisfaction. But, we are also spiritual beings with souls which make us different from the rest of God's creatures. We have spiritual selves which require spiritual nourishment and care for growth and progress.

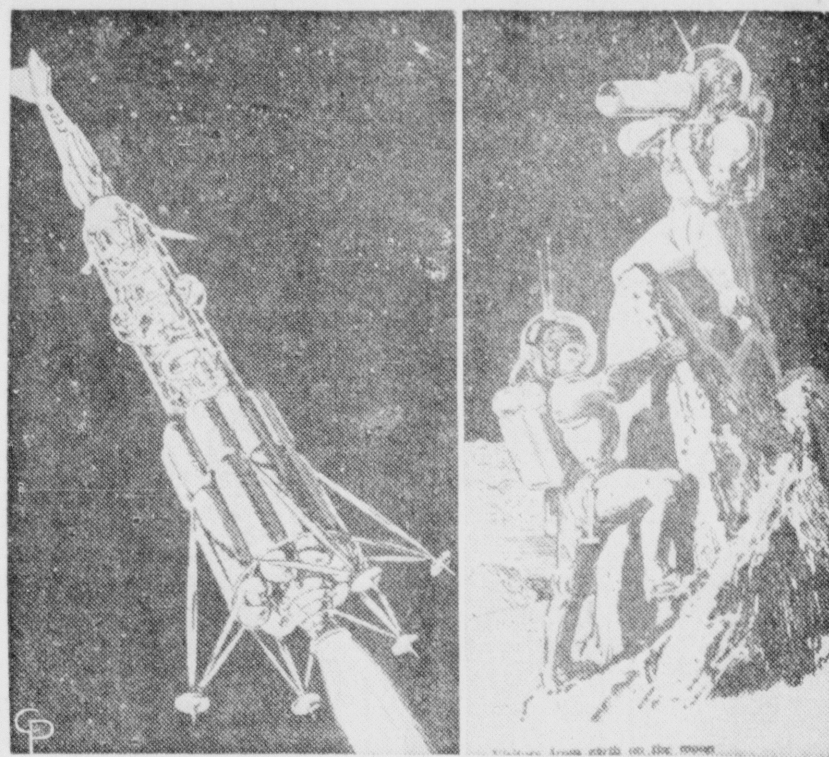

This position of ours creates a problem for us. Each part of our self seems opposed to the other, and yet both exist together in one being. Men have tried various methods of solution. Some have stressed the satisfaction of the physical needs whereas others have sought the satisfaction of only the spiritual self. Both have been equally wrong. Each has its essential part to play in man's existence.

We are in much the same position as a bicycle. Everyone knows what happens to a bicycle if one of the wheels comes off. Let us say that the front wheel represents the physical self of man whereas the rear wheel represents the spiritual self. Note that it is the rear wheel which carries most of the weight. Upon our spiritual self largely depends our happiness, peace, etc.

Now, with bicycles, the problem of getting the two wheels to work together is simple. Each has its function in relation to the other. However, with man, the two selves seem to constantly oppose each other. Therefore, it is man's problem to work out a harmonization of his two selves so that he will be what the psychologist calls a "well integrated personality".

Man seems to have little trouble caring for his physical self. It is always with him. The body is always present and its needs are felt constantly. Therefore man spends most of his time in satisfying these needs by his earning a living, etc. However, as we've shown in the illustration his happiness depends on his spiritual self.

Consider how some people are happy with very little of the

The sketches were published in the Moscow Literary gazette, with an article saying the Soviets are building a cosmic ship and Russian biologists are studying the effects of space flight on humans. The article also said it is possible for Soviet scientists to send radio-equipped guided rockets into space for observation. (International)

"things" which give physical ease and satisfaction. But the soul seems far away, something that the clergy are always talking about but with little meaning for most laymen. So they put off its needs until the "last things" come along.

THE SOLUTION:

The solution to this problem of man's nature is not as hopeless as it sounds. It lies in bringing his two selves to a working agreement.

Brother Lawrence, a monk of the Middle Ages solved it this way. He found himself serving the monastery as a cook in the kitchen, a far cry from the spiritual life he expected to live in a religious order. After much thought concerning his work, he decided that it was possible for man to do the lowliest task as if for the glory of God. "Whatsoever thou doest, do it for the glory of God" became his ruling concept.

Since God was a God of purpose and plan, whatever task helped his creatures, or maintained order in His universe, was to be done to His glory. Brother Lawrence came to the conclusion that even such a small thing as picking up a fallen leaf could be done to the glory of God.

Thus one man brought his spiritual self into his physical work. Any layman can do as much. The wholesale grocer can perform his work to provide others with food and therefore to God's glory instead of the satisfaction of his own wants. The doctor can heal the sick with similar thoughts for his patients instead of his own welfare.

CONCLUSION:

If I were a layman, therefore, I would work out some such harmony of my seemingly dual existence. Then religion and things of the spirit, instead of my physical needs, would begin to be the supporting factor of my life. Then the mere fact that I must earn a living would not exclude the growth of my spiritual self. Then I should be a whole man. I should be God's man as He intended me to be when first He gave me life.

'Ways And Means' Group Tells How To Cure Touching Subject

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — What can the poor working girl do to protect herself against "the overfriendly boss?"

I thought this problem went out about the time "Bessie, the Sewing Machine Girl" was a big hit, but apparently it didn't. Now Congress may have to consider it in revising the Taft-Hartley Act.

An office worker recently raised the question of "how to discourage the office boss from conveniently placing his hands on a girl's shoulders, arms or back while discussing business matters."

Admitting that it was a touchy subject and that often such gestures by the boss are completely friendly and an attempt to express their appreciation for work well done, the writer added, however:

"The majority of girls are embarrassed and uncomfortable when it occurs. None enjoys it and it results more often in strained employer-employee relationship than in a friendly businesslike one."

At a drugstore counter where a number of girls from several offices crunch down their malted milk lunches, I made an informal poll on what they thought about this problem.

Their reaction was mixed—and entirely feminine. Most of them said their own particular boss was more of a mouse than a wolf.

"It's the junior executives who act like office juvenile delinquents today," said one. "Every once in a while you meet one whose idea of exercise is to ask you to stay late and then chase you ten laps around the water cooler."

"My boss does pinch me every once in a while," said a plump young file clerk, blushing. "But he doesn't mean anything by it. He's the fatherly type. He says he just wants to be sure that I'm not getting undernourished."

"When my boss puts his arm on my shoulder, it's anything but love," remarked a stenographer. "He only does it after one of those four-martini, three-hour business luncheons, and he just wants something to lean on until he can reach his swivel chair."

"Heavens, I wish my boss or anybody else would put his arm around me," said a secretary. "After 25 years behind the same old hot typewriter, I've forgotten what it feels like."

"I wish my boss would thaw out more," admitted another stenographer. "After all if he were trying to put his arm around me, he'd shut up about what a lousy speller I am."

Ths girls went into a huddle when I asked them what was the best way to curb an employer who really did insist on getting overfriendly on company time.

"Every time he reached for you," suggested one, "just ask him for a raise. Boy, his arm will flop down as if you'd hit it with a crowbar."

"Well, in the old days I guess a working girl always kept a hatpin handy," said a second. "If my boss bothered me, you know what I'd do? I'd sew half a dozen thumbtacks in the waist and shoulders of my dress—with the points sticking out. Imagine how he'd look after he pawed over sharp thumbtacks."

The other girls laughed merrily at the mental picture of the boss winning his office purple heart the hard way. But they all agreed the cynical, middle-aged spinster secretary had an even better answer.

"The best way for a girl to cure an overfriendly boss is to marry him," she said, acidly. "That seems to cool any man down."
